Age, health benefits discrimination banned

Experts discuss how new law affects those over 55

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

For Virginia Beach's growing number of people over the age of 55, the recent amendment of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act unanimously passed by the House and Senate eliminating mandatory retirement ages, could have a significant effect in the next five years.

Michael LaBouve, who has served on Virginia Beach's Mayor's Committee on Aging said, "I think it will have an impact on the population but not today or tomorrow. There will have to be some time for everyone to do some planning and figuring."

"Employers are torn. On one hand, they know the value of experience. As I always say, ability is ageless. But the bottom line is still profit, not people, in American business. In many cases the older people are asked to retire early."

—Jack Nienstadt, SEVAMP director

LaBouve, provost at the Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College, pointed out that people who are close to 70 years old may already be committed economically or mentally to retiring.

"When the new law becomes more well known to people who are now 55 or 65 years old, they may have time to change their plans," he said.

The new law, which went into effect on Jan. 1, covers more than just eliminating the "cap" for retirement. According to Don Stacy, an attorney from the Baltimore District office of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the new law also mandates that health benefit coverage for spouses of employees must be equal, regardless of age.

Stacy said this was in response to some business practices that gave older employees fewer health benefits because with increasing age, they might need more medical care for themselves and their spouses.

"They can't do that anymore," he said.

The law's third major section gives a seven year "vacation" to state and local police and fire departments to reach compliance.

Because of the physical requirements of fire and police personnel, the extra time will allow for research in identifying guidelines for hiring and firing in those lines of work.

"The first five years will be given to research," said Stacy. "The last two will give them time to work it all in."

Jack Nienstadt, director of employment services with the Southeastern Virginia Area-wide Model Program (SEVAMP), sees the new law opening up opportunities for Virginia Beach's older citizens.

"Many retirees do want to work," he said. "Remember when these folks grew up. It was during the Depression and wanting to work was instilled in them."

"Nienstadt's experience with older people, many of whom are retired, is that they are now drawing on their Social Security based on their early earnings."

"Their income back then was low compared to today and many were not covered by retirement plans," said Nienstadt. "They still find it expedient to work at least part-time."

The question of employing older people goes beyond the economic aspects, said Nienstadt. "There is more to work than wages. It is an avenue for development and social interaction. You continue to develop when you get older."

LaBouve, Stacy and Nienstadt all agreed that there will be a difference in the impact of the new law on the public versus private sector in terms of employment.

"The public sector really has to toe the line," said LaBouve. "There is a lot more latitude in the private sector."

Discrimination because of age is difficult to identify. As an attorney, Stacy said each claim will have to be looked at in a case by case basis.

"Many retirees do want to work. Remember when these folks grew up, it was during the depression and wanting to work was instilled in them." —Jack Nienstadt, SEVAMP director

"Employers are torn," said Nienstadt. "On one hand, they know the value of experience. As I always say, ability is ageless."

"But the bottom line is still profit, not people, in American business," he continued. "In many cases the older people are asked to retire early."

Captain Wiley Scott (Ret.), chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Aging, said it gives the person who wants to or needs to work the chance to continue.

"There is no more 'you must retire at age 65 or 70' as a factor," he said.

The effect of having more elderly in the work force will have an additional impact on the social services of the city.

"It should reduce the need for social services because the person will be retained on the job," said Nienstadt. "More income will mean less of a need for aid" and dependence on social services.

"No one knows how many want to work and how many have set their eyes on retirement," said Sam Houston who also serves on the Mayor's Committee on Aging. Overall, he said, "I think the amendment is good."

Booze and Boats

A potentially lethal combination, boating and drinking practices may be stifled under state proposal empowering game wardens to give breath tests

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

In light of a recent proposal by the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, a recent telephone survey of Virginia Beach marina owners and operators showed all were supportive of stricter measures to make boating safer.

The proposal, conducted by the commission on orders of the Virginia General Assembly, recommends that state game wardens be authorized to administer alcohol breath tests to boaters thought to be under the influence of alcohol. The proposal also calls for standards that legally define boater intoxication. The proposal was submitted to the Assembly and the governor; whether action will be taken is uncertain.

Al Strazzullo, proprietor of the store at the Lynnhaven Municipal Marina, leased from the city, thought stricter measures were a great idea.

"Driving on the water is more dangerous than on land," he said, "You don't have any brakes. You can't control a boat as easily. There is no way to stop as quickly and it is easier to have a mishap."

"There is no room for boating and drinking," said Dr. Colin Box, Fisherman's Cove Marina and Yacht Basin.

Harold Davis, owner of D & M Marina, said he sees problems with alcohol and boating all the time.

"When you have five or six guys in a boat who have been drinking, you can't handle them," he said.

In response to the possibility of setting the definition of intoxication at .10 percent, the same used for drivers of motor vehicles in the state of Virginia, the marina owners surveyed felt it was appropriate.

"It should be the same," said Davis, "I don't see any difference between a drunk driver and a drunk boater."

"I think it seems appropriate to have the .01 percent level," said Box, "but it seems to me that there will be a jurisdictional problem."

Right now, the police marine patrol, headed by Captain W. W. Baker, as part of the Uniform Bureau in Special Patrol Operation and Tactics division in the Virginia Beach Police Department, has jurisdiction.

"We are having more of a problem in Virginia Beach, but I don't know if it's because of alcohol or the increase in the number of boats." —Captain W. W. Baker, Virginia Beach Police Department.

"I would personally support anything that would make boating safer," said Baker. "It is especially dangerous in boating because the water makes any accident hazardous."

The Virginia Beach police marine patrol works in conjunction with the state game wardens.

"We are looking for public safety violations," said Baker. "The Game Commission has the initial responsibility for all boating laws."

During the summer months the police marine patrol may have as many as six boats in the water. During the less busy times of the year they are still on call but there is not enough activity on the waterways to warrant as many men on patrol.

"There is no room for boating and drinking. A boat is a complicated machine and drinking inhibits a person's ability to operate it safely."

—Dr. Colin Box, Fisherman's Cove Marina and Yacht Basin.

"We are still on call," said Baker, "but the game commission can deal with most of the calls."

In Baker's experience, though he has seen an increase in the number of boating problems, he cannot say it is all due to alcohol.

"We are having more of a problem in Virginia Beach, but I don't know if it is because of alcohol or the increase in the number of boats," said Baker. "The more boaters you have, the more problems."

Charlie Hays, who has been manager of the Fisherman's Wharf Marina in Rudee Inlet, said he has seen very few problems involving boating and drinking. Speaking for himself, Hays said that for the more serious sports fishermen who are the primary clients at Rudee Inlet, there is not the recreational drinking while boating that you have with

Storm Talk

"I was up until midnight"

Tallak weathers northeaster, loses gazebo

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

While gale force winds of over 50-miles-an-hour howled outside, and higher than normal tides raged against the beach, Nilsen Tallak, 66, quietly rode out last week's storm in his beachfront Sandbridge home.

"I was up until midnight," said Tallak. "The storm peaked about 10:30 p.m. and we lost our gazebo somewhere around 10:45."

The night before, Tallak prepared for the storm by tying down his porch and fences with rope.

"Things like those that can be damaged by a storm I try to secure to the house," he said.

Tallak said he realized that this storm, though less fierce than Hurricane Gloria, would be dangerous.

"This was the worst of the lot," he said. "When you combine the unusually high tide with the northeaster, I knew a lot of damage would be done."

But even during the storm's peak he said he was never really frightened.

"I didn't feel scared," he said, "I just felt that something must be done. Every minute I am thinking of what to do next."

Tallak, a retired sea captain,

"I didn't feel scared. I just felt that something must be done. Every minute I am thinking of what to do next." —Sandbridge resident Nilsen Tallak.

said that waiting out a storm at his home is easier than some of the storms he has experienced at sea. In 1940, when he was only a second officer, he survived a typhoon while between the Philippines and North China.

"We nearly broke up. Lost a lifeboat and some equipment but we made it," he said.

"This last storm wouldn't have hurt us if it wasn't for the high tide," he said. "It took away the beach and that ruins it."

Tallak has lived at Sandbridge for the past ten years from September to April and has tried to stay through every storm.

"They made us evacuate with Gloria," he said. But he was right back at his home the next morning to see what needed to be done.

The best protection, he said, would be to bring in more sand. "You need to keep building up the dunes," he said, "It is the only thing that provides for protection."

Sandbridge emergency declared

Ravaging northeaster devours $2 million worth of beach sand

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

City Council has declared an emergency in the Sandbridge area as a result of damage from the New Year's Day storm.

City Assessor J. D. Banigan estimated the structural damage at $250,000 and beach erosion of 264,000 cubic yards of sand at $2 million.

The city expects little outside aid, but Deputy City Manager Aubrey V. Watts suggested the emergency resolution Monday afternoon to allow residents to engage in activities such as bulldozing.

Robert R. Matthias, assistant to the city manager, was to meet Tuesday with Vivian Watts, state secretary of transportation, to request the use of a National Guard unit with heavy equipment to rebuild the dunes at Sandbridge.

Matthias said that the erosion is more serious than at any time since 1978. He said some beach areas do not have much sand are down to clay. What's happened, he said, is that the sand bar has moved off shore.

The resolution, he said, will allow the city manager to issue permits to property owners to move sand with a bulldozer. He said that the city is not planning to use any city money.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley also asked City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck for figures on how much of the structural damage is covered by flood insurance.

Earlier, Henley had said that one of the city's priorities for the year would be to determine which beaches get sand. She said the storm brought the Sandbridge situation to the forefront. Such a massive situation exists in Sandbridge, she said, that the Council will have to make a decision quickly.

While visiting the Sandbridge area over the weekend, Dennis, the nephew "for sale" house was damaged property and the Seniors keep working

The Senate and House recently unanimously passed a law amending the Age Discrimination in Employment Act. Where there used to be an arbitrary age set for mandatory retirement, the new law bans forced retirement.

What was the reasoning for setting mandatory retirement ages in the first place? It may have been a way to vacate positions for younger workers to fill. Maybe it was thought that a worker's retirement benefits or Social Security would take care of older citizens and allow them to enjoy their later years.

Whatever the reasonings, the law resulted in forcing some to stop working even though they were capable. While age does take its toll, many people are able to continue working well into their 70s and to make them stop is a crime.

But more importantly, the older workers will continue to benefit their employers with their years of experience. No amount of education can replace the knowledge and skill that comes from the on-the-job training an older person has acquired.

In Virginia Beach the number of people over the age of 55 is growing faster than in any other city in the Hampton Roads area. The most recent statistics show the number of people in the 55-and-over age group increased by more than 5,000 in the four-year period from 1980 to 1984—much higher than the national average. This new law will, in years to come, have a greater impact here than in most places.

In the long run, the effect of this law will benefit Virginia Beach. In the first place, an older person who continues working also pays taxes. At the same time they do not need to be supported by federal, state and local programs, thus easing the burden on the rest of the taxpayers.

But more importantly, the older workers will continue to benefit their employers with their years of experience. No amount of education can replace the knowledge and skill that comes from the on-the-job training an older person has acquired.

It is interesting to note that a survey conducted for the American Association of Retired Persons showed that one-third of those questioned would prefer work to retirement. For anyone at any age, work gives a sense of duty and identification. Whether you are a doctor, teacher, taxi driver or homemaker, work is important.

It is for these reasons that the new law amending the Age Discrimination in Employment Act is so encouraging. For most workers, if you are competent at your job and enjoy doing it, your age should not be used to stop you.

In weighing the pros and cons, Virginia Beach will gain because of the experience and knowledge of its older citizens.—J.D.B.

Crowded waterways calls for extra care

The General Assembly and Governor Baliles have before them a proposal from the state's game commission. After studying the state of affairs on Virginia's waterways, the commission recommended stricter measures to deal with the growing number of accidents on the increasingly crowded Virginia waters.

The growing number of boats and boaters in this area attests to the fact of the wonderful resources Virginia Beach has in its waterways. But, even though being on the bay and along the ocean's shoreline can be a wonderful place to play and recreate, the water can be a dangerous place if you are not responsible.

Right now, there is no legal standard for determining whether a boater is intoxicated. Should it be any different than that for driving a car? When you are drunk, you are drunk—no matter if you are in a car, boat or sitting in your kitchen.

Two facts came to light in the study showing that, increasingly, boaters are not acting as responsibly as they could.

• In June and July last summer, state game wardens checked 11,769 boats and found alcoholic beverages aboard 6,019 of them.

• In an analysis of 41 boating fatalities in Virginia in 1984 and 1985, it was determined that alcohol was involved in at least 28 percent of them.

With the rules of boating as they stand now, there are few restrictions for boaters. You don't need a license, which means even a four-year old can operate any boat. The "rules of the road" are hard to enforce in the first place, and without licensing, more than likely many boaters are not well

Buyers beware: warranties and return policies

The following information has been provided by the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

Q: I purchased a used car "as is." Isn't the dealer responsible for repairs during the first thirty days?

A: According to the Federal Trade Commission's Used Car Rule, cars sold "as is" do not have a warranty. Any repairs necessary after purchase are the responsibility of the buyer.

The Used Car Rule, effective in May 1985, requires dealers to post a Buyers Guide in the window of each used vehicle. The Buyers Guide will state:

- Whether the vehicle comes with a warranty and if so, what specific warranty protection the dealer will provide;
- Whether the vehicle comes with no warranty ("as is") or with limited warranties only;

- That you should ask to have the car inspected by your own mechanic before you buy;
- That you should get all promises in writing; and
- What some of the major problems are that may occur in any car.

Whenever you purchase a used car from a dealer, you should receive the original or an identical copy of the Buyers Guide that appeared in the window of the vehicle you bought. The Buyers Guide must reflect any changes in warranty coverage that you may have negotiated with the dealer. It also becomes a part of your sales contract and overrides any contrary provisions that may be in that contract.

Dealers are required to post the Buyers Guide on all used vehicles, including automobiles, light-duty vans, and light-duty trucks. A "used vehicle" is one that has been driven more than the distance necessary to deliver it to the dealership or to test drive it. Therefore, "demonstrator" cars are covered by the Rule. Motorcycles are excluded.

Q: Most stores seem to have a return policy, is this a requirement for retail businesses?

A: No. Retail businesses are not required to have a return policy. Just as customers have the privilege of choosing the stores in which they shop, merchants have the privilege of deciding to offer refunds, exchanges, or in-store credit vouchers. There is no law forcing stores to grant them.

However, there is a Virginia law that says that if a store's return period is less than twenty days, their policy must be posted or attached to the merchandise. The State Office of Consumer Affairs advises consumers to ask about the return policy before making a purchase. Sometimes stores adopt special policies during the Christmas season or other occasions. In such instances, stores may declare a cut-off date for returns and exchanges.

Return items as soon as possible. Take your receipt along and be sure that the item is in the same condition as when it was purchased. If you have lost your receipt, take another proof of purchase such as a cancelled check or credit-card receipt. The store may or may not accept a substitute receipt, but it's worth trying.

If your purchase is defective, most merchants will either replace the item or offer to repair it. Read the warranty before buying and inquire about the store's policy on defective merchandise.

Thinking Things Through

By James D. Barr

I made the decision to get involved

It was something you don't see too often and not something I hope to see in the near future.

Last week, as I was driving home with my family, a car just ahead of us drove through a red light and hit another car which had the right-of-way.

Just seeing the accident was stunning enough. But when the car ahead of us never stopped to see what happened, I realized we were witnesses to a criminal offense—a "hit and run." I was shocked.

Before the glass and metal and smoke settled, I knew I had a choice. I could continue on, figuring the police would soon be here to take over, or I could become involved.

I became involved. Once I saw that the woman whose car was hit was all right I kept my eye on the car that was speeding away. It was now quite recognizable because one of its tail lights was smashed by the accident.

We live in a day where "if it feels good, do it" is a prevalent attitude. My decision was to go out of my way to help someone I didn't know. I wasn't looking for headlines but I know that if I am not willing to go out of my way, I couldn't expect anyone else to.

Though the driver had a sizable lead on me, because of the traffic pattern we were able to catch up (why he stopped for those red lights after having ignored the previous one, I don't know). Once we wrote down his license plate number we went back to the scene of the accident and gave the information to the person who had been hit. Though shaken by the accident, she was thankful for our kindness.

It would have been easy to keep out of the whole affair. I may still have to testify in court or be involved in some other way in the future, I don't know. But that didn't play into why I made the decision to get involved.

Our society is based on a level of trust that is ordered by laws. These laws should have the effect of encouraging law keepers while discouraging law breakers. Were I to have stayed uninvolved, the law behind our traffic system would have been broken with no justice for the law keeper and no consequence for the law breaker. Chaos would have reigned for that moment. But I don't like chaos.

We live in a day where "if it feels good, do it" is a prevalent attitude. My decision was to go out of my way to help someone I didn't know. I wasn't looking for headlines but I know that if I am not willing to go out of my way, I couldn't expect anyone else to.

We all must make those decisions. We must also be aware that the decisions we make go beyond our personal lives. They affect the community by either promoting good or encouraging evil. It's your choice.

Virginia Beach Daughters of the American Revolution welcomes 145 new citizens at federal District Court

The Oath of Citizenship was recently administered to 145 new citizens by a federal judge of the United States District Court, Eastern District of Virginia, in Norfolk.

Members of the Princess Anne County Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, conducted the welcoming ceremony following the oath-taking. Arrangements were made by Mrs. Norton J. Ashman, chapter chaplain. Mrs. Clarence J. Smith, Jr., state organizing secretary of the Virginia DAR, led the Pledge of Allegiance and the American's Creed. Miss Betty T. Edwards gave the invocation and benediction.

Mrs. Rice M. Youell, Jr., executive vice chairman of the National DAR Committee commemorating the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution, and a member of the Lynnhaven Parish DAR Chapter of Virginia Beach, was the guest speaker. She told the new citizens that the Constitution, which will be 200-years-old this year, literally constitutes us a people—one people.

"Through the years, America has been called the great melting pot because all newcomers soon became Americans in every sense of the word," she said. "However, in recent years emphasis has been placed on the pluralism of our society, rather than on our unity. Some now call America a tapestry quilt."

She then quoted remarks by William Bennett, the secretary of education.

"This is a country of different colors, races, ethnic and religious backgrounds. But in the last 20 years we have been celebrating our idiosyncrasies and differences. Some of this is quite appropriate, but we need balance; more needs to be said about the ways in which we are bound to our fate together, as one people."

The new citizens were urged to read the Constitution, which was described in the words of Katherine Drinker Bowen, a distinguished lecturer and writer.

"The United States Constitution provided for neither class nor privilege. All were mobile, a man could move up or he could slip down. It was a wholly unprecedented departure, and to Americans both immigrant and native born, it gave extraordinary scope.

"Neither the Declaration of Independence nor the Constitution claimed to make timid men courageous, lazy men active or stupid men bright; they unlocked doors, let Americans walk through, each one to his own destiny."

Concluding remarks were made by Mr. Sidney Snyder of Norfolk Sertoma Club. As the newly naturalized citizens were given their Certificates, the members of the DAR distributed American flags.

Standards of Quality: An annual subject of debate between teachers, politicians

LET'S TALK

By Rob Jones, president, Virginia Beach Education Association

According to the Standards of Quality of Virginia, "The goal of public education is to aid each pupil, consistent with his or her abilities and educational needs..."

This far reaching sentence is lifted from the preamble to the Virginia Standards of Quality (SOQ), and is the philosophical and statutory cornerstone of the Commonwealth's commitment to public education. Unfortunately, since its legal inception in 1972, it is a commitment that had not been met until this biennium. Even at that, whether the standards are fully funded this biennium depend upon whose figures one accepts.

Section 2, Article VIII of the Virginia Constitution provides that, "standards of quality for the several school divisions shall be determined and prescribed from time to time by the Board of Education, subject to revision only by the General Assembly..."

While the substance of the standards does not change, funding is up for review during every even numbered year as part of the state's biennial budget, although budget amendments surface during off years as well.

What are the Standards of Quality and why do they generate such lively debate? The standards are the largest single budgetary consideration in each biennium. They have also been the easiest and most visible target when it comes to making cuts in the Commonwealth's expenditures.

Under the SOQ, your school children should:

1. Develop competence in the basic learning skills.
2. Progress on the basis of achievement.
3. Qualify for further education and/or employment.
4. Develop ethical standards of behavior and participate in society as a responsible family member and citizen.
5. Develop a positive and realistic concept of self and others.
6. Enhance the beauty of the environment through the arts.
7. Respond to aesthetic experiences through the arts.
8. Practice sound habits of living and personal health.
9. Acquire a basic understanding and an appreciation of the free enterprise system.

the free enterprise system.

That's a tall, but attainable order, and the 42,000 members of the Virginia Education Association have worked hard each year to get the General Assembly to fully fund its mandated programs. Regardless of what else was on VEA's agenda, full funding of the SOQ was its top priority. Under the leadership of former Governor Robb, the course was set. Governor Bailes has supported the cause and during the current budget period, the goal of full funding is scheduled to be attained.

Whether one believes that the standards will be fully funded or not in the coming year, it's clear that the battle for the General Assembly to provide the money to reach the goals listed above for every public school student in the state is not over.

VEA is clearly committed to this goal and VBEA calls upon every citizen of Virginia Beach to be alert for, and respond to, any threat which would curtail the state's legal responsibility toward the public school students of the Commonwealth.

Investment Outlook: emphasize small and medium size growth companies

Wall Street The Week Ahead

By George T. Stagg

All we needed to have our 1986 year-end rally was to have a few more days in December. It all started on December 33.

The rally that everyone was looking for in the last few days of December never materialized. Instead, the list ran into last minute selling on New Year's Eve, sending the DOW down over 12 points to close south of 1900 for the first time since November 21.

However, buyers did show up on Friday to start the new year off with a 31 point rally, having dispensed with all the year-end tax selling.

1987 Investment outlook: as we move into 1987, we believe that moderation is the watchword for all facets of this market. Fueled by the weaker dollar, an improving trade deficit, the recent upward course of the money supply, and employment numbers, which, in our opinion, reflect the "meaneer" and "leaner" and more productive nature of American industry, we expect a moderately improving economy in 1987.

months ahead will be on smaller and medium sized growth companies operating primarily or solely in the U.S., and that have underperformed the "blue chips" for the past two years. These are the companies that will benefit most from tax reform.

Many domestic companies that have not been heavy users of investment tax credits and other "loopholes," now narrowed, will see a substantial drop in their effective tax rate. These savings will be reflected in higher net income, increased dividends and higher stock valuations.

If the economy grows moderately in 1987, as we forecast, the real growth stocks should out perform absolutely. If the economy is flat in 1987, these stocks should at least out perform on a relative basis.

Finally, I read where a Boston precentist says that love can prevent the common cold...pass the tissues, sweetheart.

...we expect a moderately improving economy in 1987.

This should be accompanied by moderate inflation, moderate profit growth and moderate stock market appreciation.

versed in current boating regulations and boat operation.

For the majority of Virginia Beach boaters, boating is a recreational hobby. What better way to relax after a hard week at the office than to get out on the open waters. But along with freedom and fun comes responsibility. The sad thing is, irresponsible behavior by a few may lead to greater restrictions for everybody.

In the operation of a boat, like a car, there is no place for the use of alcohol. While alcohol and boating seem to go together in a recreational setting, alcohol can only lead to impaired operation of the boat. That endangers everyone.

Right now, there is no legal standard for determining whether a boater is intoxicated. Should it be any different than that for driving a car? When you are drunk, you are drunk—no matter if you are in a car, boat or sitting in your kitchen.

The questions before our elected officials concerning boating are not easy. The problem of multiple jurisdictions between state and local agencies make it doubly difficult. It is hoped that wisdom would prevail over political maneuverings.

But in the end, requiring a license or creating new laws will not necessarily reduce the number of accidents. Personal responsibility must be taken by each boater. Taking the time to read and review the operating procedures of your boat and current boating regulations is a start. Recognizing that alcohol and other drugs do not mix with boating is important too.

Virginia Beach is a wonderful place to boat. But care must be taken, especially as the waterways get more crowded, in order that boating remain fun for everyone.—J.D.B.

Resolutions: safety first

Many Virginia Beach residents have made their new year's resolutions, but, if not, it's not too late, I would like to offer a few more ideas for you to consider.

Installing a smoke detector in your home. Every home should have a smoke detector installed at each floor level. If your home has only one floor, place additional smoke detectors in each bedroom, attic or garage.

Smoke detectors are now in 75% of all homes nationwide, but in a recent survey, it was found that over half of the smoke detectors actually worked.

Smoke detectors must be tested monthly. To test a smoke detector, simply put a piece of cotton ball in an ash tray and light it. Let the smoke drift into the detector. The alarm will sound. The test is completed. This tests the sensing chamber on the detector to assure it is working properly. When the test button on the detector is depressed and sounds the alarm, all that is doing is testing the battery. Vacuum the detector monthly also to avoid false alarms set off by cob webs and spiders.

Please consider having the fireplace cleaned. If using a wood burning stove, it is recommended that after every full cord of wood burned, the chimney should be cleaned. A chimney fire is serious. When emptying the ashes from the firebox, place the ashes in a metal bucket. Ashes will stay hot up to two days. Six homes in Virginia Beach have already been destroyed this season from carelessness with fireplace ashes.

These new year's resolutions are different, but they directly reflect how you can keep yourself safe from fire during the new year. Smoke detectors cost less than $10 and having the fireplace cleaned is approximately $30. Forty dollars is not much for what you are getting, "peace of mind." So think fire safety, your life may depend on it. Have a happy 1987.

F.O.P. application denied

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Fraternal Order of Police Lodge #28 has lost its bid to locate its headquarters at 4301 Bonney Road.

City Council Monday afternoon denied applications for a rezoning and use permit needed to establish the lodge at the site.

The Planning commission also had recommended denial because the applications were not in keeping with the intent of the Comprehensive Plan in permitting the intrusion of an incompatible use into an established single family neighborhood.

Council members appeared to be favorable generally toward the use, but unwilling to rezone the property, a 1.62-acre parcel, from R-6 Residential District, to O-1 Office District.

R. J. Nutter, attorney representing the F.O.P., said the Lodge, which is 15 years old, has 160 active members and 60 retired members. The Lodge was formerly located on part of the site now occupied by the Virginia Beach Plaza Hotel on Bonney Road.

None of the nearby residents opposed the applications and two supported the applications.

Bill Mascali, an adjoining property owner, said Bonney Road is already commercial and that he saw nothing wrong with the applications. He said he opposed a rezoning application in 1983 out of fear that the applicant would store construction equipment on the site.

Police Sgt. T. T. Herring said the organization includes 10 agencies (in Norfolk and Virginia Beach) and meets once a month. The Lodge, he said, supports ten charities, and is interested in sponsoring a Little League team and a Boy Scout troop.

He said the Lodge also has oyster roasts, Christmas dances and spaghetti dinners.

Herring said the Lodge plans to ask for an ABC on premises license.

Vice Mayor Meyera Oberndorf asked whether the organization is "slightly a private country club" such as the Commodore Club which had private parties.

Herring said that the Lodge is not like the Commodore Club in that it has no associate memberships.

Oberndorf said that she did not know of an F.O.P. Club which created a disturbance, but was concerned about rezoning the property to office use, setting a precedent. She asked why other clubs, such as a racquet club, did not have to rezone property to office use to receive a permit.

Planning Director Robert Scott said the difference is that the other facilities are outdoor recreational facilities.

Councilman John Perry asked whether the Lodge could put in a tennis court and perhaps even a swimming pool and pass as a recreational facility.

Councilman John A. Baum said that the lodge would be a transitional use and moved for approval. The motion was defeated by a vote of 7-4 with Councilmen Baum, Robert Ferriss, Harold Heischobor and Perry voting in favor. The applications were then denied by a vote of 8-3 with Baum, Ferriss and Perry dissenting.

Council members appeared to be favorable toward the use, but unwilling to rezone the property...

City Council has canceled its Feb. 16 meeting (George Washington's Birthday).

Its Jan. 19 meeting, however, has been rescheduled for Jan. 20. Jan. 19 is Martin Luther King's Birthday.

After Council voted to cancel the Feb. 16 meeting, Councilwoman Nancy Parker suggested meeting on the 17th instead. Her effort was defeated when the vote was tied with those voting with Parker including Vice Mayor Meyera Oberndorf, Councilman John Perry, and Councilwomen Barbara Henley, Reba McClanahan, and Parker. Councilman Harold Heischobor was absent.

dered what people are told when they buy houses.

She said that just as driving students are shown videotapes of driving situations, "there ought to be a video tape" for buyers of oceanfront property. She added that the ocean isn't concealed.

Councilman John A. Baum said that buyers are extremely innocent.

But some of the agents know a lot, said Henley.

"When a person can't get ordinary home owners insurance, something ought to light up," said Councilman Harold Heischobor.

Henley then asked what responsibility Council had toward the people, adding that there is "a fine line between over-policing and meeting our responsibilities."

Vice Mayor Meyera Oberndorf said that when homes are damaged, that the first attack is on government because government is responsible for giving permits to build the homes.

Aubrey Watts reported to Muehlenbeck that because of the limited scale of the disaster from the storm there was little or no chance that aid would be available. Private homeowners, he said, should be able to seek compensation from their insurance companies or through flood insurance available through the federal government if they have such coverage.

The emergency fund of the Public Beach Board of the State was exhausted last year and no funds are available from that source.

The storm occurred, said Watts, when an extremely high astronomical tide was joined by a low pressure weather system to produce strong northeasterly winds, high tides and heavy surf along the eastern shoreline of the city. Tides ran two and a half to three feet above normal with heavy wave action on top of the tides.

In a letter to Addison E. Slayton, director of the State Department of Emergency Services, Watts said the city is concerned about the condition of the beach and should another northeast occur, he feared significant structural damage to many of the oceanfront homes along the four-and-one-half mile Sandbridge strip.

Overflow crowd of 300 listen to funeral service. Photo by James D. Barr

Close to 500 people, some who had to stand outside the Nimmo United Methodist Church in the chilly weather, look on as pallbearers carry the casket of Sidney S. Kellam. Kellam was the political chief of Virginia Beach for four decades and the architect of the merger of Prince Anne County and the then-small city of Virginia Beach. Photo by James D. Barr

Virginia Beach mourns loss of long-time leader

The small Nimmo United Methodist Church where his family had been involved for generations could not hold the hundreds of people who came to pay their last respects to one of Virginia Beach's longtime leaders, Sidney S. Kellam, who died last week at age 83.

Though never the person in the forefront, Kellam's political influence touched four generations and left an indelible mark on Virginia politics.

Those in attendance at the funeral showed this as leading men and women of the area came to honor the man who shaped Virginia Beach into what it is today.

Crime Solvers

Virginia Beach Crime Solvers is seeking information about the April 12 murder of a 26 year old Virginia Beach woman. Up to a $1,000 cash reward will be paid if a call leads investigators to an arrest.

On that Saturday morning, Sharon Kimberly Disney (known as Kim) left the Continental Room in the Aragona Shopping Center where she was employed. On her way home she stopped at a friend's house in the 4600 block of Valley Forge Lane in the Pembroke section. After a brief visit, she walked to her brown, 1978 Pontiac Sunbird and was stabbed by her assailant between 3:45 and 4 a.m. Kim was able to make her way back across the street to the house where she collapsed. Her friend heard a noise and discovered her body on the front porch.

Anyone with information about this murder is urged to call Crime Solvers at 427-0000. If the information leads to an arrest, a reward will be paid. Rewards are also paid for information on any other crime committed in Virginia Beach. Callers are assigned a code number and are never requested to reveal their name or testify in court to collect a reward.

Audio cassettes added to Beach library collection

The Virginia Beach Public Library has added 1,000 spoken word audio cassettes to library collections.

The cassettes are distributed among the area libraries and include fiction, nonfiction and children's titles. Among the fiction titles are The Thornbirds by Colleen McCullough, A Town Like Alice by Nevil Shute, Rebecca by Daphne DuMaurier, and Pride and Prejudice by Jane Austen. Nonfiction titles include How to Manage Time and Set Priorities, The Secret to Staying Motivated, The Art of Public Speaking, and Love Must be Tough. Children's titles include Caps for Sale, The Tale of Tom Kitten, Crunchy Baby and Musicians of Bremen.

Other types of materials included in the collection are old time radio shows and the Language-30 series of foreign language instruction tapes which include Spanish, German, French, Japanese, Italian, and Norwegian.

The audio tapes may be borrowed and reserved like any other library materials by registered cardholders. Inquire about becoming a registered cardholder or borrowing an audio cassette at any of the Virginia Beach Public Libraries. For more information contact Mary K. Chelton at 427-4321.

Atlantic Avenue Re-engineering starts

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Councilwoman Reba McClannan, saying she did not want to spend the taxpayers' money on anything but the best solution for Atlantic Avenue, cast the sole vote against the new Atlantic Avenue circulation proposal.

The program, approved by Council Monday afternoon, will be financed from a $1,950,000 allocation for a Resort Street-cape Demonstration Project in the Capital Improvement Program.

The resolution adopted Monday afternoon authorizes the city manager to proceed with the initial phase of the long-range program for installing a circulation system and demonstration project along Atlantic Avenue between Rudee Inlet and 44th Street.

The circulation and demonstration proposal was recommended by a joint committee representing the Resort Area Advisory Commission and the Virginia Beach Hotel and Motel Association.

Tim Barrow, chairman of the Resort Area Advisory Commission (RAAC), said that the plan is the first which represents a consensus of the business and residential communities, the hotel and motel association, the staff and RAAC.

McClannan maintained that the circulation pattern would be no different than it is now, in that it will continue to permit two-way traffic on Atlantic Avenue.

Barrow said that the city has been working on the problem for 20 years and, "if that we waited to get consent from all groups for one-way traffic, we would wait for another 20 years."

He said the plan is well-drawn and would accommodate a one-way proposal. The physical improvements are the same that they would be for a one-way system, he said.

Business interests have opposed one-way traffic for years.

McClannan said she was a little irritated. She said she was not aware of any place up and down the coast where a one-way system is not the ultimate answer.

"I don't want to spend taxpayer's money unless it's the best solution...until people involved are willing to sacrifice...I don't see that we have come that far. I hoped all of the other elements would be considered. If we're going to say we're going to do what we want to do, so be it. But in the future I hope we will address the basic issues. Ultimately we will have to go one way."

She said that if there is another city like Virginia Beach regarding the traffic circulation she wanted to see it.

Barrow said that he had originally proposed one-way traffic for Atlantic and Pacific Avenues and continues to believe professionally that one-way traffic is the ultimate solution.

"But," he said, "we have been 20 years without seeing the sidewalks improved."

On a motion by Vice Mayor Meyera Oberdorf, seconded by Virginia Beach Councilman Robert Festress, the proposal was approved by a vote of 9-1. Councilman Harold Heischober was absent.

"I know this isn't the perfect solution," Oberdorf said, but "Virginia Beach is like a beautiful woman who needs a little powder...to make her appear what she is."

Council adds provisions to open burning code

The Virginia Beach City Council recently approved changes to the City Code with regard to open burning.

Restrictions were submitted to Council by Harry Diesel, chief of the Virginia Beach Fire Department.

The provision to Section 12-3 of the City Code enables fire inspectors and police officers to require the extinguishing of fires constituting a smoke or traffic hazard, or nuisance, and in aggravated cases, to cite violators.

Citizens burning debris such as brush, leaves or other flammable materials are required to pile the debris in a cleared area to prevent the spread of fire to areas that might endanger others or constitute a nuisance to surrounding property.

For a specific copy of the revised Code, citizens may contact Public Information Office at 427-4111.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Virginia Beach Planning Commission will hold a Public Hearing on Tuesday, January 13, 1987 at 12:00 Noon in the Council Chambers of the City Hall Building, Princess Anne Courthouse, Virginia Beach, Virginia. A briefing session will be held at 9:00 a.m. in the Planning Department Conference Room, Operations Building. Planning Commission action is not a final determination of the application, but only a recommendation to the City Council as the viewpoint of the Planning Commission. Final determination of the application is to be made by City Council at a later date, after Public Notice in a newspaper having general circulation within the city.

Those members of the public interested in attending the Public Hearing should be advised that, for reasons the Planning Commission deems appropriate, certain items on the agenda may be heard out of order and that it should not be assumed that the order listed below will be exactly followed during the Public Hearing.

The staff reviews of some or all of the items on this agenda suggest that certain conditions be attached to approval by City Council. However, it should not be assumed that those conditions will ultimately be attached to the project. Staff agencies may impose further conditions and requirements during administration of applicable city ordinances.

Council members list top priorities for 1987

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Virginia Beach City Council is making a list and checking it off for priorities. Which programs should be pursued the first and the most in 1987?

Planning in one way or another seemed to be way up there on top as Mayor Robert G. Jones Monday afternoon, at the first Council meeting of the year, invited Council members to forward their top priority projects.

He led off by listing as one of the most important issues for the year the study of ordinances in the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance by Councilwomen Reba McClannan, Barbara Henley and Nancy Parker.

Also getting top billing from Jones was the updating of the Comprehensive Plan for the Courthouse/Sandbridge study area, with special emphasis on the impact on land use of the proposed Southeastern Expressway; the Lake Gaston water source, and a review of the boards and commissions.

He said that some members of the boards and commissions appointed by Council feel they are not being shepherded by Council. Councilman John A. Baum said that more is needed than an update of the CZO. He said that a number of drastic changes have occurred, agricultural acreage has shrunk, and the drought has affected agriculture. Baum, a farmer, said that while agriculture is an important part of the economy, he questioned whether it was a reasonable use of the land. He said that the city has no in-depth knowledge of what agriculture means.

Henley said that the farmette business is thriving in Pungo—3 1/4 acres of very poor land sold for $55,000 in one instance. She said she wondered what affect this will have on the area.

She said that it was important to get the Capital projects moving as quickly as possible. She cited General Booth Boulevard as one project that moved so quickly it should be a model.

He said that she had noted, however, that only $45,000 had been encumbered so far for the Center for Effective Learning, a project on the 1985 referendum which was presented by school officials with so much urgency.

City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck said that the city's management team will meet later this month to discuss the capital program.

For Councilman John D. Moss, his priority is elected school boards.

Councilman Robert Fentress said that Council should review and develop a master development plan.

Councilman John Perry is championing upward mobility of the minorities. He said he would like streets, sewer and water road with necessary gutter, curbing and landscaping; developing 30th and 31st Streets on a one-way pair extending Laskin Road to the resort center.

Also widening and upgrading Birdneck Road to General Booth Boulevard, upgrading the Birdneck Road/Route 44 Interchange, and the development of a visitor orientation/reception center in the vicinity of the Pavilion along the Toll Road.

He said that the citizens have a tremendous misconception about the Operating Budget and "the sooner we can make the first year of the Capital Improvement Program part of the Operating Budget, (the better it would be.)"

Henley said one of the Council's priorities should be to determine which beaches in the city get sand replenishment.

Becoming philosophical, she asked: What are our responsibilities to people? I always feel that maybe the government did not do what it should.

For example, she said the city should make sure campgrounds are not used as permanent residences. She also questioned whether anything could be done to reduce the traffic fatality rate which has increased in Virginia Beach. (Fentress noted that two-thirds of the deaths are alcohol-related.)

Obernordf continued the self-examination, asking what laws provide that the people who build houses on the oceanfront have the right to build, or is it better for Council to help or remain neutral.

She concluded that Council should schedule a meeting to "really examine the issues and prioritize what we can reasonably accomplish."

of the sidewalks on Atlantic Avenue with extensive landscaping to enhance the pedestrian environment. Eventually, parking would be eliminated on the stub streets east of Atlantic Avenue and reduced on the numbered streets between Atlantic and Pacific Avenues with the provision of off-street parking facilities.

The traffic pattern on all the numbered streets except for 21st and 22nd streets would be revised from the existing one-way system to the two-way traffic pattern.

The long-range plan includes upgrading the full length of Atlantic Avenue and all side streets to Pacific Avenue, implementing one-way traffic on Arctic Avenue and Baltic Avenue between 17th Street and Laskin Streets and establishing two-way traffic on the other numbered streets. Improvements would be coordinated with existing water, sewer and storm drainage in the demonstration area.

Nowhere to go

Cold, lonely winter forces beach people into libraries; officials say transients getting older, and trend is increasing

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

Every year when the weather turns cold in Virginia Beach, a few less fortunate people know that the local library is at least one place they can go for peace, quiet and warmth.

But at the oceanfront, the problem with transients and the homeless is more acute.

"These people are usually harmless," said Captain J. W. Baker, who works out of the Virginia Beach Police Department's second precinct on 18th Street near the oceanfront. "I've been here since 1965 and we have always had street people. It was a younger crowd before, but now it tends to be older folks."

There are also reports from at least two of the city's branch libraries of an individual and even a family who regularly frequent the libraries during the winter from the time they open until they close. But because there has yet to be a serious incident involving the visitors, no action has been taken.

Brazier said if the person isn't breaking any laws and not being disruptive there is nothing the police can do.

"What action can you take?" he said.

Martha J. Sims, Director of the Department of Public Libraries, said the matter has come to her attention.

"As a public place we are open to the general public," said Sims. "The policy we have to deal with it is the policy we have for everyone. We prohibit disruptive behavior from anyone whether they are a patron or a visitor."

Sims said the issue usually arises when, "the staff or patrons have become concerned over the library rather than because of a disruption."

Mary K. Chelton, the library system's programming and community services administrator, said that at this point there has been some internal discussion at the administrative level, but, "we take a fairly lenient view. If they aren't disruptive, we just try to be polite."

The problem is sporadic, said Chelton, and more than anything else it is aggravating when it happens.

Mary Reese, the area librarian at the Oceanfront branch of the Virginia Beach Public Library system, said that while the summer brings in a large number of tourists who use the facilities, in addition to the year-round regular locals, the winter months make the library an attractive haven for anyone who needs refuge.

"We do have more people who stay all day just because we are at the beach," she said. "It is really hard to say someone is loitering in a library."

Reese added that those who hang around the library to get out to them because they can get out of the cold and read the newspapers and magazines, she said.

"It is not that we are unconcerned on the one hand or ready to crack down on the other," added Chelton. "It is just that the problem has not gotten bad enough to address."

Elaine Stephens, superintendent in charge of the Basics Needs Unit of the Social Services Department in Virginia Beach, said that the people who need a place to go and who use the libraries are not that noticeable initially.

"And it is not just in the libraries," she said. The calls that come to her attention are from stores, private businesses and

Expressway problems discussed

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Virginia Beach may be finding itself in a chicken-and-the-egg predicament in the case of the proposed Southeastern Expressway. Which comes first, asked Councilwoman Barbara Henley, the land use or the road?

She said that since the Expressway is not in the immediate future, she could see a situation where the land use would be determined on the basis of the road, while the road is never built.

"I don't know how much we want to get committed to the land use areas," she said Monday afternoon, at a work session, as City Council discussed priorities for the year.

"We want to know where the road is going to be built," she said.

Councilwoman Reba McClanahan agreed, saying that one problem the city has had in the past is it has relied on one road to be the total solution.

She questioned using the Freeway as an excuse to develop the land surrounding the area at higher densities.

City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck said that the state has already asked Chesapeake and Virginia Beach, the cities the road will pass through, to pay their share, five percent each, of the cost of the $200 million project.

Virginia Beach's share, $5 million, he said, could be paid from available funds.

Muehlenbeck said the road has to be designed first before the center line is determined. He said that the toll feasibility study

Great Neck Junior High wrestling coach named a "World Coach" but titles only reflect his love for the sport

Take delivery in April

New $30,000 Davis Corner ambulance will have air horn, trauma equipment

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

Considering that the cost of a simple stretcher for an ambulance can run $1,000, getting a new ambulance for the Davis Corner Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad for only $30,000 is considered a great deal.

"The stripped down truck is what is costing $30,000," said Bob Slack, chief at the Davis Corner Station. "The actual price is between $40,000 and $45,000 without trade in."

But even at the higher price, the ambulance, once it is delivered in early April and fully equipped for service, will be worth closer to $100,000.

"The money is small when you put it against the number of volunteer man-hours put in by the rescue squads of the city. We don't charge for our service, it is raised all through donations." —Bob Slack, chief, Davis Corner Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad

"We are going to put on an air-suspension system to make the ride better," said Slack. "We will also add to the communication system so we can interact with other local and state agencies. That will cost around $3,000."

Another piece of equipment on the ambulance will be a telemetry system. It allows a doctor at a hospital to monitor the heartbeat and other vital signs of a patient at the site of the emergency. The price tag for the telemetry system is in the neighborhood of $7,000, said Slack.

The oxygen equipment, the units in the truck and portable units for on-site mobility, have become more sophisticated and costly but, said Slack, "they are becoming more improved for the good of the people we serve."

Tickets for Seabee/Civic Engineers Anniversary Ball now available

Beginning Thursday, Jan. 15, tickets for the 1987 Tidewater Area Seabee/Civil Engineer Corps Anniversary Ball will be available for purchase. The ball will be held on Saturday, March 14, at the Virginia Beach Sheraton Beach Inn.

All active duty, reserve and retired Civil Engineer Corps Officers and Seabees and their guests are invited to attend the Ball. Attire for the evening will be black tie for civilians and dinner dress blue for officers and enlisted military members.

This year's Ball will begin at 6:30 p.m. with cocktails, followed by dinner at 7:45 p.m. and a military ceremony at 9 p.m. The popular "Atlantic Express" Band will begin the musical entertainment at 9:30 p.m. Violin music will also be featured during the cocktail hour and during dinner.

For more information, contact David B. Guise at 464-8540.

Virginia Beach Pops Orchestra and chorale to perform January 18

"Behar, The Elephant" by Francis Poulenc, will be one of the segments of repertoire performed by the Virginia Beach Pops on Sunday, Jan. 18 at the Pavilion Theater. The story for adults and children will be narrated by Henry DeShields at both the 2:30 and 7:30 p.m. concerts.

Walter Noona will lead the orchestra in the "Pique Dame" Overture by Vonsuppe and Elissa Dickon, principal harp, will be featured in Debussy's "Dances Sacred and Profane."

The 70-voice Virginia Beach Chorale, directed by Lutrell Sawyer, will join the orchestra in a spectacular performance of Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture." For its lighter fare Maestro Noona will lead the orchestra in the ever favorite, "The King and I."

Tickets may be purchased by calling the Pavilion Box Office, at 428-8000.

Small Business of the Year nominations being accepted

Nominations are now being accepted in Virginia Beach for Small Business of the Year by the Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce. Sunday, Feb. 1 is the last day to make nominations.

The award recognizes outstanding small business owners and operators for their personal achievement and contributions to the community.

Each of the five Hampton Road cities will have a winner and one of the five will be the regional Small Business of the Year winner.

All questions and nominations should be directed to JoAnn Cavwood at 622-2312.

Helping the homeless and needy

I don't think there has ever been a time where there haven't been poor people. It's a fact of life. Virginia Beach is no exception.

Each society deals with the problem of the poor differently but they all deal with it. There are two basic options.

The first one, and the one this generation of Americans has grown accustomed to, is giving the major responsibility of dealing with the poor to the government. Measures put in place to deal with the problems caused initially by the Great Depression are still in operation today.

The other option is to let the private sector respond to the need in each community. Many would say that the problem has grown to big. But that doesn't absolve the community from trying to deal with it.

Having the government tax the population to raise money to help the poor is not the final answer. Where there are people with critical needs and the government has some responsibility to assist them, it should only be a temporary measure. If there is no incentive to work out of financial dependency, there is a tendency to use the help as long as it lasts.

As Virginia Beach grows the problem of people needing assistance to make ends meet will only grow worse. Who is going to take responsibility in dealing with this situation? The two paths are in front of us.

In the long-run, the private sector is more cost effective in their efforts. Money given for helping the poor is put to its best use. Programs that don't work are eliminated. People that don't try to work are not allowed to burden others with their sloth.

From the citizens' perspective, assistance to the poor based in the private sector alleviates some of the tax load. Instead of the state extracting money from every citizen for the purpose of helping others, only those who choose to would give. Of course, taxation for other purposes as outlined in the Constitution would continue.

In fact, some feel the Founding Fathers never intended for the federal government to have power to tax for the reason of giving to others. They might have called that type of taxation something closer to stealing.

In any case, Virginia Beach residents must see the importance of the matter. One street person, who called himself 'economically handicapped,' estimated that there were close to 100 homeless in the oceanfront area.

As Virginia Beach grows the problem of people needing assistance to make ends meet will only grow worse. Who is going to take responsibility in dealing with this situation? The two paths are in front of us.

Either each citizen decides how much he or she should give and where it will best be used, or someone will make that decision for you.—J.D.B.

"World Coach" is a teacher

Jack Harcourt is the wrestling coach at Great Neck Junior High. His programs are impressive. Getting 90 kids to come out for wrestling practice in one of the smallest junior highs in the city is quite a feat.

His enthusiasm for the sport and his desire to see it grow in this area is overshadowed by one thing—his love of teaching. Though he was recently named "World Coach" by the USA Wrestling Association and will gain international exposure this summer as assistant coach of the national cadet team, he still considers himself a teacher first, then a coach.

That is probably the reason he gets 90 kids out to a wrestling practice. His love for the sport and desire to pass that on to others exudes from him. The students recognize that.

That is probably the reason he gets 90 kids out to a wrestling practice. His love for the sport and desire to pass that on to others exudes from him. The students recognize that.

Working with junior high kids can be draining. Wanting to spend more time with them after the last bell has sounded takes even more energy. We want to say congratulations to Jack Harcourt for being named "World Coach."

But more importantly we want to say thank you for making that extra effort to work with some of the young people of Virginia Beach. Your time and effort are investments into the future of the city.—J.D.B.

Letters to the Editor

Oceanfront idea

Editor:
Recently I was walking along the boardwalk at the beach. I couldn't help but notice that many motels were closed for the off-season.
I felt this to be a shame because the owners are losing money and a lot of people are out of work.

So I tried to think of a solution.
I came up with this: Why not have the city advertise nationwide that the motels at the beach are offering group rates to clubs and organizations that want to hold conventions during the off-season.

For example a group of 50 would get rooms for $10 a night per person. I feel this would fill up the off-season.

Commentary

By Detective Michael Derwent, Crime Solvers Coordinator,
Virginia Beach Police Department

As the new year begins, Virginia Beach Crime Solvers would like to share our success story of 1986 with the many people who have made Crime Solvers the great success that it is.
Virginia Beach Crime Solvers has assisted the police department with the arrest of 296 people. Those arrested have been charged with 708 crimes ranging from murders to larcenies. Crime Solvers has also assisted in the recovery of $151,202 worth of stolen property and in the confiscation of $464,420 in illegal drugs. Over 98 percent of the cases involving Crime Solvers information have been successfully prosecuted.

Highlight of the year was receiving the productivity award from Crime Stoppers International, the parent organization of over 600 programs. The award was for solving the most cases for cities with populations of 250,000 to 500,000. The Crime Solvers board of directors, composed of citizens from all areas of the community, oversee the operation of the program and provide money for cash rewards to be paid. Last year $24,800 in rewards were authorized. Since the reward fund is totally comprised of tax-deductible con-

Thinking Things Through

Living without television

Though you may not believe it, my wife and I do not own a television.

Where most Virginia Beach homes have a television (if not two or three) placed prominently in the family room or living room, we have opted to keep the "boob tube" out of our lifestyle.

That is not to say we never watch TV. On occasion we have borrowed a television set from a neighbor if there is something we feel is worthwhile. But for the most part we have found that our evenings can be filled with other, more productive activities than staring at the TV screen.
We have done this for three major reasons.

James D. Barr

We came to the first reason when we decided to get married. As we read various material in our marriage counseling program, more than once it came to our attention that young couples needed to cultivate their communications skills, especially in the first year of marriage.

The habit of parking in front of a TV during the evening rather than talking to each other is not very profitable. Too many times the TV is used to escape.

To avoid this we made a pact not to spend our evenings focused on half-hour sitcoms but to find things we could do together. What was initially proposed as a one-year test has now lasted more than four years and we have been very creative in finding alternative activities.

Why we all subject ourselves to such blatant materialistic brainwashing is beyond me. In any case, my wife and I decided to turn our backs on the hype to "buy, buy, buy" and all the garbage that goes with it.

Secondly, we agree with all the findings that point out some of the detrimental effects of too much television viewing. Beyond the violence and moral degradation, half of the time is spent being bombarded by television commercials telling you you are not complete if you don't buy brand X, life will be easier if you purchase item Y, or if you don't get a brand new something-or-other before your neighbor you will never make the grade.

Why we all subject ourselves to such blatant materialistic brainwashing is beyond me. In any case, my wife and I decided to turn our backs on the hype to "buy, buy, buy" and all the garbage that goes with it.

Thirdly, and more positively, the benefits that have resulted from our redeeming the time this way has created better habits for us and, now that we have two small children, better habits for them as well.

We read more. Not only do we enjoy this but we are seeing our two-year-old daughter grow in her love of books.

We spend time writing letters to people we know around the world. What an eye-opening experience it is to hear from friends who live in different cultures. We have found that time spent this way is really an investment into our many friendships.

I should say that while the TV is used sparingly in our home, we do avail ourselves of the radio. We keep up on the news and ina year. Though he wanted to continue, his need for employment kept him out of wrestling, but not completely.

"I became a high school wrestling official in 1971 and have been up until last year so I never really was out of wrestling," he said. "Plus I have been coaching for the last nine years."

All of his coaching has been at the junior high level—the first five at Princess Anne Junior High and the last four at Great Neck Junior High.

Though he has had opportunities to coach at the high school level he has decided to stay where he is.

"I love working with kids this age," said the 37-year-old coach. "They are at a time when they are getting serious about wrestling and seeing if they like it enough to continue. It is a time where you can really help them find out about themselves."

His wife, the former Kathy Proctor, is a former Cox High School state gymnastic champion and is now the Great Neck Junior High School gymnastics coach. "Coaching is in the family," he said. Their two children, Matt, age 7, and Nicholas, age 9, are both wrestlers.

His love for wrestling and helping kids at the junior high level will take him to international wrestling competition this summer.

As world coach Harcourt will serve as an assistant coach for the United States Cadet team (ages 15 and 16) at the wrestling World Championship to be held this July in Collingwood, Ontario, Canada. Thirty countries will be represented at the tournament.

Whether or not any of his wrestlers from the Virginia Beach area make it far enough to go with him is another matter.

"I hope to take a few kids to Richmond in April for the state competition, but they have to qualify there if they want to go to nationals," he said. "Then once they get to nationals they will win to make the national team which will compete in the international event."

"It's really tough to go that far," he continued. "In international competition they wrestle free-style and Greco-Roman. They are a little bit different than the collegial style which is what you see in high school meets. So, after wrestling all season one way you have to adjust to the other style."

Though he qualified for the state wrestling tournament as a high school wrestler, Harcourt said, "As a coach, I think my weaknesses when I was a wrestler help me the most now. I was a wrestler with a lot of potential but I lacked confidence. That's where a lot of young wrestlers are at the junior high level and now I am in a position to help them deal with it."

In his career to this point, Harcourt has enjoyed seeing his wrestling programs build and getting people involved.

"The Princess Anne program was small when I got there," he said, "but now it is one of the strongest in the area and even in the state."

Harcourt is also the first Virginia state chairman for the USA Wrestling Association. Under his leadership over the past five years, membership has gone from zero to 1,500 members.

Being at the junior high level means he has had the pleasure of watching some of his wrestlers go on to bigger and better things in high school. "A few have been state champs and I hope some of their success has been due to my influence."

At the end of the day, he said, it isn't the titles or the honors that are important. "I just want to see wrestling get more exposure," he said. "It is a sport that takes dedication and discipline. Those are things that can affect kids the rest of their lives."

ment, which is so important in emergency situations, adds a few thousand more to the price.

"The money is small when you put it against the number of volunteer man-hours put in by the rescue squads of the city," said Slack. "We don't charge for our service. It is raised all through donations."

An additional change on the ambulance will be in the warning system. Slack said that along with the air suspension system will be air horns.

"When someone is driving their car with the windows up and their radio up full blast, they don't always hear the sirens," he said. "With the air horns we will be like the big trailer trucks on the highway and you know what they are like when they sound their horns!"

Along with the air horns will be a set of strobe lights replacing the incandescent lights on the roof.

"They will be doubly helpful in emergency situations," said Slack. "In the first place, they are more visible in the daytime. Secondly, they only pull four amps from our batteries where the incandescent ones pulled 100 amps. We don't have to worry about our batteries being drained during a run."

Even the paint job on the ambulance will be special. It will be painted the same colors as the old ones, all white with orange trim, but the Scotch Light paint, "is highly reflective," said Slack.

Slack emphasized that the $30,000 appropriated from the city will be paid back.

"This is a loan, not a grant," he said. "It is an interest-free loan to be paid back over three years."

The Davis Corner Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, located on the corner of Haygood and Ferry Plantation Roads, serves approximately 35,000 Virginia Beach citizens.

"But we work together with all the rescue squads in the city," said Slack. "If a call comes in to go to Pungo or anywhere else, and we are the closest manned unit, we respond."

"We get fantastic support from the city," Slack continued. "They provide for insurance, gas, and some other things. But with the volunteer help we provide, they are able to provide a wonderful service for the city."

Golden Years

The Golden Years is published monthly in The Virginia Beach Sun, The Chesapeake Post, and The Portsmouth Times

First things first: Learn about SEVAMP

The Southeastern Virginia Area-wide Model Program, Inc., more commonly known as SEVAMP Senior Services, had its beginning in 1965 when a group of concerned Hampton Roads citizens established the Senior Citizens Service Center. This center was subsequently incorporated in 1968.

In 1972 the Senior Center Board and membership approved changing the name of the agency to the Southeastern Virginia Area-wide Model Program (SEVAMP). That same year, SEVAMP successfully petitioned the federal government for a model national grant award, and became one of 10 model programs in the nation designed to plan and coordinate a full range of comprehensive services for the elderly.

SEVAMP was incorporated as a private non-profit organization, whose goal was to provide services for the senior citizens throughout Southeastern Virginia. This goal was reaffirmed in 1973 when the Virginia Office on Aging designated SEVAMP as the Area Agency on Aging (AAA) for Planning District 20, which includes Norfolk, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach, Chesapeake, Franklin, Suffolk, and the counties of Isle of Wight and Southampton. By being named the Area Agency on Aging, SEVAMP became responsible for planning, coordinating, and providing social services for the elderly, either directly or by contract with other community service providers.

SEVAMP is funded with federal revenues from the Administration on Aging, United States Department of Health and Human Services, and ACTION, the federal agency for volunteerism. Additional funds are provided by the state of Virginia and local governments, local public and private agencies, and the United Way of South Hampton Roads.

SEVAMP's overall objective is to assist older persons in living independent, meaningful, and dignified lives within their own homes or other places of residence. Emphasis is placed on reducing the isolation of our elderly population and deterring unnecessary institutionalization. SEVAMP's administrative component prepares the annual Area Plan, which specifies how SEVAMP will use its funds to develop a comprehensive and coordinated system of services for the elderly in Planning District 20.

Agency Functions

Administration and Fiscal Planning: SEVAMP, as the Area Agency on Aging, plans and administers the Area Plan for development and delivery of social services to the 113,000 elderly in Virginia's Planning District 20. This plan identifies the needs of the elderly, establishes priorities, and outlines objectives for services to meet these needs. In addition, SEVAMP monitors, assesses, and evaluates agencies contracting with SEVAMP for the provision of needed services.

Advocacy: SEVAMP advocates for the needs of older adults by monitoring, evaluating, and commenting on policies and programs that affect the elderly. In this way, SEVAMP is able to advise public officials, agencies, and organizations on legislation and regulations affecting older citizens.

Coordination and Technical Assistance: SEVAMP develops a comprehensive and coordinated service delivery system by facilitating the coordination of agencies presently providing services to older persons.

Pooling of Untapped Resources: By pooling untapped resources, SEVAMP secures other federal, state and local sources to strengthen existing programs and to inaugurate new services for older adults.

Direct Services

Community Services: SEVAMP's Community Services component is designed to identify, inform and assist the underserved in PD 20. SEVAMP maintains outreach workers for each jurisdiction, whose job it is to provide assistance and advocacy in the acquisition of needed services. It is projected that these workers will locate an additional 2,000 new clients, and provide 13,500 units of access assistance in obtaining services each year.

In addition to assistance with federal support programs, outreach workers provide occasional friendly visits, and provide a link with the surrounding community that might otherwise be non-existent.

Nutrition Program: Through 20 congregate meal sites throughout Planning District 20, SEVAMP serves over 800 meals daily to persons 60 years of age and older. These hot, nutritious meals provide one-third of the recommended daily allowance to these seniors. Home-bound meals are delivered on a regular basis to those who are disabled or shut-in. Health, social and community programs are also a part of the activities conducted at the nutrition sites.

Transportation: In Norfolk, Portsmouth, Chesapeake, Virginia Beach and the core city of Suffolk, transportation is provided primarily through a contract with the Tidewater Transportation District Commission. Transportation needs in the counties of Isle of Wight, Southampton, City of Franklin, and Suffolk are handled directly by SEVAMP. Transportation is provided for medical, food, and social services on a priority basis to those who are not physically able to utilize public transit, or where no public transit services exist. Notice is required at least one week in advance when scheduling transportation.

ID/Discount Program: The SEVAMP ID card, which includes the recipient's picture, name, address, social security number, and signature provides a valid form of identification and proof of age for thousands of Tidewater's elderly.

SEVAMP has also enlisted a number of merchants in the Planning District who will give various discounts to seniors bearing the SEVAMP identification card. A list of participating merchants is published in a discount directory available at the SEVAMP office.

Senior Employment Programs

Senior Community Service Employment (SCSEP): This program places economically disadvantaged individuals 55 years and older in part-time employment settings. It also provides for an annual physical examination, orientation, and on-the-job training for each program participant. The program's goal is to find unsubsidized positions for program enrollees.

Older Worker Program (JTPA): This program provides training opportunities for economically disadvantaged unskilled older adults 55 years and older for entry into the labor force. Specific training components under the Program are designed to address the needs of the individual to obtain permanent productive employment.

Senior Skill Corps: Sponsored by SEVAMP, this program recruits, screens, lists, and refers experienced older workers to those who are in need of home repairs or maintenance. These services are offered in Norfolk, Portsmouth, Chesapeake, and Virginia Beach.

Senior Volunteer Programs

Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP): The Retired Senior Volunteer Program recruits, screens, and places over 700 retired volunteer workers in a number of community service agencies and organizations. Work placements include hospitals, municipal agencies, day care centers, and nursing homes. RSVP volunteers bring a wealth of experience and knowledge to the job setting, as well as a work record unparalleled by other age groups. Volunteers are reimbursed for allowable expenses.

Senior Companion Program (SCP): This program has placed nearly 65 volunteers into the homes of some 300 disabled elderly and other clients with special needs. Companions work part-time providing socialization, respite care, recreation, assistance with home maintenance, personal hygiene, health, and nutrition and also serve as advocates. Benefits include a stipend of $2.20 an hour, plus reimbursement for travel. Volunteers work four hours per day, twenty hours per week Monday through Friday.

Contract Services

Dental Clinics: These are provided through contract by SEVAMP. They provide dental services and dentures for the medically indigent.

Public Health Nurse and Homemaker Services: SEVAMP provides, through contracts, public health nurses who visit homes and meet with groups to provide individual advice, medical services, and health screening clinics. Home-maker and home health aids are provided by contract with several health service providers in the planning district. Through these services, SEVAMP hopes to delay or deter the institutionalization of their clients.

Access Services: These services are provided through a contract with Western Tidewater Mental Health Center, who provide a foster family program for elderly returnees from and potentials for institutions. These services are aimed at reintegration into or retention in the community. This program includes residents of Suffolk, Franklin, Isle of Wight and Southampton. The Norfolk Senior Center assist elderly persons to find needed services.

Legal Services: Service is provided through a contract with Tidewater Legal Aid Society to economically disadvantaged seniors. Services do not include criminal cases, traffic violations, or fee generating cases.

Day Care Centers: In Norfolk, through contract with the Norfolk Senior Center, in Virginia Beach, through contract with The Center for Leisure Activities for Older Adults, and in Chesapeake, through the Chesapeake Department of Social Services day care is provided. These centers provide socialization, a wide range of crafts and activities, as well as certain health and hygiene services to their participants. These services provide supervised care for its members, which frees their relatives or friends for a limited time during the day.

Senior Centers: These multipurpose facilities coordinate and deliver recreational, education, and social activities, as well as health programs and services. These centers, located in various communities within each jurisdiction, operate on a membership basis. Call SEVAMP for a list of the centers in your area.

Not all of the services and programs are offered in each jurisdiction served by SEVAMP. Each community assists SEVAMP in establishing priority services with the future goal of a full comprehensive and coordinated system of services for older persons throughout the Planning District.

For a listing of the services and programs available in your area, contact the SEVAMP office.

Persons who receive services through SEVAMP are given the opportunity to contribute to the cost of these services. SEVAMP does not solicit funds, but anyone who wishes to contribute is encouraged to do so. All contributions are tax-deductible and used to expand services provided by SEVAMP.

Exercise guidelines for our active older people

1. Get permission from your doctor.
2. If inactive, start with short periods of exercise, about 10 minutes twice a week, slowly building up to 30-45 minutes four times a week.
3. Always include warm-up and cool-down periods of slow stretching for 5-15 minutes to tune up and to wind down your body.
4. Pay attention to your body. If you feel much discomfort, slow down, take a break, or stop until next time. Judge your progress against your own body, not that of others.
5. Be alert to unusual symptoms such as chest pain, breathlessness, joint discomfort and muscle cramps. Report to your doctor.

Avoid these movements during exercise and in your daily activities.

1. Jumping and hopping. Jog only if you are a life-long jogger. (Substitute walking, bicycling, swimming or dancing for cardiovascular activity.)
2. Bending over without flexing your knees, toe-touching while standing.
3. Bending your head back and looking up. (Instead, push up toward the crown of your head, trying to lengthen the back of your neck.)
4. Fast jerky movements such as kicking your legs and flinging your arms. (Always use slow deliberate, controlled movements to exercise.)
5. Lowering your head below the level of your heart, especially if you become dizzy easily.
6. Doing sit-ups with your legs

7. Doing leg raises with both legs at the same time. (Raise and lower one leg at a time, keeping the other knee bent.)
8. Shoulder-stand bicycling. (Always keep hips on the floor.)
9. Arching your back, raising head while lying on abdomen.
10. Arm-flinging with sit-ups, even though knees are bent. This lessens tension on abdomen, instead of strengthening these muscles.
11. Doing deep knee bends, (substitute half knee bends, not lowering hips below knees.) Deep knee bends weaken knee muscles, making them more vulnerable to injury.
12. Range-of-motion exercises in any joint, moving it in only one direction. Always reverse directions so that opposing muscle groups will be strengthened.

Practice these things in your exercise program:

1. Relax each muscle completely between series of repetitions. Relaxed muscles stretch easy.
2. Include deep breathing exercises to supply oxygen to your working muscles.
3. Synchronize your breathing with your movements, doing the most work on exhalation.
4. Maintain good posture throughout your exercise period. Muscles in poor alignment can become injured more easily.

VIRGINIA: In the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach on the 8th day of January, 1987

Winifred Langley, Plaintiff, v.
 Leavy Langley, et al, Defendants.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of the above-styled suit is to compel partition among the heirs of Robert Langley, who died in March of 1958, seized and possessed of property commonly known land numbered as 4422 Princess Anne Road, Virginia Beach, Virginia and more particularly described as follows:

ALL THAT certain parcel of land containing five (5) acres more or less, situate in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, being a part of the tract of land which was conveyed to Shaw Land and Timber Company by F. M. Whitehurst and wife by their deed dated March 18, 1905 recorded in the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia in Deed Book 75, page 523, and being bounded and described as follows: beginning on the Public Road at the intersection of the Northern line of said road with the Eastern line of said Lot #5 as shown on said plat thence running along the eastern line of said Lot #5 N. 42° 25' E. Fourteen Hundred and Eleven and Seventy Four Hundredths (1411.74) feet more or less to a post; thence Westwardly N. 47° 20' W. One Hundred Sixty Seven and Sixty Four Hundredths (167.64) feet more or less to a post; thence Southerly S. 41° 20' W. Fourteen Hundred Twenty Two and Three Hundredths (1422.3) feet more or less to the Public Road; thence Easterly along said Public Road S. 51 1/2° E. One Hundred Forty One and Twenty Four Hundredths (141.24) feet more or less to the point of beginning.

It appearing by Affidavit filed according to law that the addresses of the following defendants are unknown: 1. Thelma McPherson, if living or if she be dead, then the widower and heirs, devisees and successors in title of Thelma McPherson. 2. Leland E. Reed. 3. Other Persons, who are made parties defendants by the general description of parties unknown.

That certain of the defendants in this suit may have been married and if so the names of their respective spouses are unknown and their last known addresses are also unknown. That some of them may have died leaving heirs, devisees, or executors, if so, the names of said heirs, devisees and executors are unknown, and their last known addresses are also unknown. That there are or might be persons other than those named in the Bill of Complaint interested in the real estate to be disposed of in this suit whose names and addresses also are unknown.

It is therefore ORDERED that the above named persons, if living, and if dead, their heirs, devisees and executors, and if married, their respective spouses, and all persons other than those herein named, who are or might be interested in the real estate to be disposed of in this suit, whose names are unknown, to appear on or before March 2, 1987 and do what is necessary to protect their interests.

It is further ORDERED that the foregoing portion of this Order be published once a week for four (4) successive weeks in the Virginia Beach Sun, a newspaper published in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia.

Future Expressway discussed by City Council

 McClan said that the City of Chesapeake would be delighted with a toll. Citizens in that city would be paying once while Virginia Beach citizens in Virginia Beach would be paying twice, once on the Virginia Beach/Norfolk Toll Road and once on the Expressway.
 She said that there was too much thinking in the development community that if the Expressway becomes a reality they "can develop 10,000 units per acre."

Mayor Robert G. Jones said that development is going that way and "the sooner we do something, the better."
 One of the proposed routes would connect Route 44 at Potters Road in Virginia Beach with I-64 and Kempesville Road in Chesapeake.
 Jones asked Council members last week to consider their priorities for the new year. Most centered on planning concerns. Monday's discussion was a continuation of the priorities issue.
 Jones said that Robert Witherpoon, of the Urban Land Institute has indicated that he is interested in coming into the area to do a study to the land use corridor. Jones said that seven experts would make a five-day study of the area.

 Henley also repeated her concerns about the increase in traffic deaths in the city.
 She said that people seem to accept traffic deaths, while 50 deaths in any other fashion would be considered an epidemic.
 "We have an epidemic of traffic fatalities, she said, and need to do something. We ought to make them unacceptable."

Stricter sign regulations will affect resort district most

By Lee Cahill
 City Council Reporter

The Resort Commercial District will be affected most by stricter sign regulations under amendments proposed by the city's sign regulations in the comprehensive Zoning Ordinance (CZO).
 Additional changes, which are not part of the CZO and therefore do not require the recommendation of the Planning Commission, would reserve for City Council the authority to allow signs, awnings, marquees or similar structures to encroach on public rights of way. At present, the director of Public Works has this authority.
 Although the changes (on encroachments) are not limited to any particular zoning district, Robert Lohr, director of permits and inspections, said that the greatest effect would be felt in the V-5 Resort Commercial District where there are 200 encroaching structures.
 The provision would allow a period of six months for the structures which do not have Council's approval to be removed.
 The proposed section pertaining to the B-5 Resort Commercial District, relates to number, size, coloring, maintenance and illumination of signs and provides that signs may only contain the name of the establishment advertised. Graphic or pictorial representations are prohibited.

 The anticipated effect, according to Lohr, is that signs in the Resort Area will be fewer, smaller and more attractive.
 When non-conforming signs are altered, according to the proposals, the signs must comply with applicable sign restrictions and will not retain their non-conforming status.
 The signs will be considered structurally altered whenever their copy or advertising matter is changed. So long as the signs advertise the same business, Lohr said, they will be permitted, although they may be altered.
 The remaining 12 ordinances primarily impose minimum frontage requirements for businesses to be entitled to have free-standing signs.
 Councilman Harold Helachobor suggested that some alternative be offered to the 200-foot frontage requirement for free-standing signs. He said that land selling for $200,000 to $250,000 an acre would be involved.
 Hotel District properties would be required to have a 150-foot frontage.
 The new section pertaining to the Resort Commercial District makes that district a special sign district.
 Under the provisions no signs should:

- *Contain any matter other than the name of the establishment advertised.
- *Contain more than two colors other than the color white.
- *Contain or consist of any graphic or pictorial representation of any kind.
- *Contain any moving, flashing, blinking alternating or pulsating lights changing in intensity lights indicating the temperature or time of day.
- *Be attached to any neon lighting or similar lighting.
- *Be permitted to remain in a state of disrepair or deterioration for any period of time longer than is necessary to effect the repairs.
- *Restrict signs inside windows to 20 percent of the surface area of the signs.
- *For each 40 feet of principal frontage adjoining a street and for each 80 feet of lot line adjoining a street but not constituting frontage, an establishment may have no more than one sign and no more than a total of 16 square feet of surface area of signage, and no more than two signs of which one may be a free-standing sign.
- *One center identification sign for each principal entrance will be permitted in a neighborhood residential center containing at least five establishments and at least 40,000 square feet of land area. The sign would contain only the name of the center.

Traveling artist to present clay workshop

Virginia Museum traveling artist Darryl Starr will present a clay sculpture workshop titled "Death of the Ashtray" on Saturday, Jan. 24, at the Virginia Beach Arts Center.
 The workshop is co-sponsored by the Museum and the Arts Center and will be presented in the Center's ceramic studio from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Friday evening, Jan. 23, at 7 p.m., Starr will give a lecture in the Arts Center's Main Gallery.

 Starr will attempt to inspire students to "break away from stereotyped treatments of clay and enjoy the refreshing rewards of an unencumbered approach," he says.
 The workshop will be devoted to making ceramic pieces using varied techniques and approaches. The final exercise will involve clay used with other materials, and the workshop will culminate with a critique and slide documentation of works.

 Registration for the workshop is free and open to the public; however, space is limited. Please call VBAC at 425-0000 for further information and registration.

"Wearable art garments" workshops at Arts Center

The Virginia Beach Arts Center will present a two-day workshop titled "Wearable Art Garments" on two consecutive Saturdays, Feb. 21 and 28.
 Fiber artist and clothing designer Lynne Sward will instruct the workshop, in which she presents ideas for artistic design, techniques and construction of one-of-a-kind wearable art garments.

 Sward considers her clothing creations "an alternative to boring, expensive, trendy, ready-made clothing," for people who want to make their own unique outfits. Sward employs commercial patterns and fabrics of the students' choice.

Before the first session, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Arts Center's studios, participants buy their fabrics and supplies after receiving tips from the instructor.
 By the end of the workshop, students will have completed one finished piece of their own design.
 Registration is open at the Center to both members and non-members. Cost is $30/$36, not including materials. The workshop is for beginners to intermediates. Students should have access to a sewing machine for work outside of class.
 Some techniques to be covered include machine and handsewing, applique, surface design and unorthodox embellishment. Call the Center at 425-0000 for further information.

 The best entries will be selected for display at the regional exhibit in Jacksonville, Florida this spring. The art works featured at the regional showing become eligible, upon further judging, for national exhibition at the Boys Club of America Annual National Conference in New York City.

Refugees—No turning back

More than 200 Vietnamese refugees, fearing persecution in their homeland, find sanctuary in Virginia Beach

By James D. Barr

From the outside the house looks like any other house in the area. The lawn is well trimmed and the house is nicely painted.

But the family that lives there has led quite a different life. They are refugees from Vietnam. Having fled South Vietnam in 1975 after the Communist over-throw, Trung Doan, age 59, and Loi Duong, his wife, 54, (in the Vietnamese culture the wife keeps her maiden name) have lived in Virginia Beach for the past seven years.

In Vietnam, Doan worked for the government and Duong owned and operated a pharmacy. People who worked for the government and those that owned their own businesses were the first targets of persecution when the communists took over.

In 1979, they fled the country by boat and now reside in the Indian Lakes section. Doan has a job with Busch Manufacturing and Duong works as a custodian at Christ the King School. They are just two examples of over 200 Vietnamese refugees in Virginia Beach who cannot go back to their own country.

Helping them and many others to resettle in the area has been the job of Office of Refugee Resettlement. Kathleen Garske, regional director of the Tidewater office, said they have dealt with over 225 refugees since 1982, but "some do not stay in the area," she said. "The refugees we deal with," she continued, "are of all ages. Families, single adults, brother and sisters, it runs the whole gamut." One 86-year-old woman just arrived in November in the United States from Vietnam.

"The important thing to remember is the difference between a refugee and an immigrant," said Garske. "A refugee status is given by the United States government to someone fleeing persecution. They cannot live in their own country for certain reasons and they have no place to go." "An immigrant," she continued, "chooses to leave their country though they could stay if they wanted."

The Office of Refugee Resettlement's role is to provide new arrivals with "survival skills" to orient them to the new culture. Though some, who come from the very westernized city of Saigon, do not have too difficult a problem, others suffer from intense culture shock.

"When they first get here, their sponsor gives immediate aid," said Garske. "Since they arrive with very little, they need the very basics such as clothing, housing, food and finding employment."

Healthy Occupation

Dr. Richard Easton, physician to the city's 5,000 employees, discusses relationship between employees' health and work environment

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

If things had worked out a little bit differently in his past, Dr. Richard E. Easton, the city of Virginia Beach's director of Occupational Health, may have been a medical consultant for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's astronauts. But in 1965, after studying at Harvard University's School of Public Health and the Guggenheim Center for Aerospace Health and Safety, his decision to join the faculty at University of Kansas Medical Center led him eventually to Virginia Beach where he is now the physician to the city's 4,444 full-time and 490 part-time employees.

"I fully intended to work with North American Aviation, more widely known as Rockwell," said Easton, "but it was right at the time when the government was cutting back on the space program and most of the positions I could have taken were eliminated."

Easton was born in Chicago and raised in Lawrence, Kan., where his father was the head track coach at the University of Kansas. When he entered the University of Kansas, he first studied architecture and engineering.

"I was on the track team for a year and half and made the Dean's Honor Role every semester," he said. But the summer after his freshman year, when his family was up in Ealy, Minn. where his father had a boy's camp, he befriended a doctor whose infectious love of his profession rubbed off on the young Easton.

"I kept at engineering for the first semester when I got back to school, but in the second semester of my sophomore year I started taking liberal arts and pre-med courses," he said. "I was able to get all my courses in the next two and a half years, applied to medical school, and I've never looked back."

After graduating from medical school he worked at the Los Angeles County General Hospital, a 3,000-bed facility, he said, but his interests moved to aerospace medicine.

It was then that he went to Harvard to study for two years and where he obtained a master's degree in Public Health and a Master's in Science in Physiology. The research there, he said, was quite interesting.

Dr. Richard Easton, director of Occupational Health for the city of Virginia Beach.

"We studied things like the effects of long term weightlessness, bone demineralization and other things dealing with space flight," said Easton.

It was then that the space program had its cutbacks so he returned to the University of Kansas Medical Center in 1965, this time as part of the faculty.

Yet, after teaching there a few years, it was feedback from the medical students which motivated his next move.

"It became apparent that the major derogatory attitude of students toward the faculty was that no one on the faculty had private practice experience," said Easton. "Here we were preparing them for private practice and the entire faculty had just gone from college to medical school to graduate research and joined on as faculty at the school. I decided then to try private practice."

While working in Coffeyville, Kan., "the farthest you can go in the southeast corner of Kansas without becoming an Okie," said Easton, he met Dr. Robert Manning, who was later to become the first dean of the Eastern Virginia Medical School.

"Once he was here, he proceeded to call me every month and ask me 'When are you coming to Virginia?'" said Easton. "I finally came."

"I wouldn't say it is a monumental problem, but there has been an increase in the use of marijuana, prescription drug abuse, and even a small bit of cocaine."—Dr. Richard Easton, director of Occupational Health for the city of Virginia Beach.

After a stint as a professor of internal medicine and the director of medical education at Norfolk General Hospital, he took a year off, he said. "Sort of reassessment time."

Then, through a friendship with Senator Clancy Holland, who was then in private practice, on the Virginia Beach city council and mayor of the city, Easton was approached to take a position with the city as director of Occupational Health.

"I took the job," he said. "Up

Jung enthusiasts forming new society

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

While most Virginia Beach residents have heard the name of Carl Jung (pronounced Yung) many would have a hard time telling you who he was and what he did.

That is one reason why Dr. Ronald Kledzik, a Virginia Beach psychiatrist and Jungian analyst, along with some others in the area are trying to form a local C. G. Jung Society.

The goal of their efforts is, "to provide a public forum from which to present and discuss the work of Jung," said Kledzik.

Bruce Bischoff, a clinical social worker who is also interested in starting a society, said the forum would bring together people to discuss the work of Carl Jung and keep informed about work that has built on Jung's thinking.

Most people know who Sigmund Freud was. Bischoff said Jung, who studied under Freud, added a spiritual component to describing and defining man's drives in his unconscious. It is this spiritual component, said Bischoff, that gives man a "drive for wholeness."

Jung frequently stated that he felt no patient was completely healed until they had regained not necessarily their religion, but their religious vision.

The first meeting, organizational in nature, will be held on Sunday, Feb. 8 at Virginia Wesleyan College. The meeting will highlight a BBC-filmed interview of Carl Jung when he was 82 years old, just before he died in 1961.

"There are a lot of students in the area who are reading his material and getting together to talk about his work," said Kledzik, who is president of the board of directors which is trying to organize everything. "There are also many professionals doing the same thing."

Though membership to the organization will be open to the people all over the area, Kledzik said, "A good 50 percent will probably be from Virginia Beach."

Once the group is formed, Kledzik hopes to have nine speakers come to speak to the group each year. He said there will be dues for membership to the society but the meetings will be open to the general public.

"The dues, about $20, will be to defray the cost of bringing in the speakers," said Kledzik, "but membership will entitle you to more." Kledzik foresees the establishment of a local newsletter, various workshops, seminars and other local lectures.

Public hearing set on Jan. 27 for review of public schools

A public hearing will be held Jan. 27 for local citizens to air comments about how well they feel about the public schools and whether the schools are meeting the state Standards of Quality and Standards for Accrediting Schools in Virginia.

The Virginia Beach Public Schools are scheduled to undergo an administrative review Jan. 27-30 by officials of the Virginia Department of Education.

The hearing, to be conducted by the coordinator of the review team, will be from 7-9 p.m. in the School Board Room at the School Administration Building located in Virginia Beach's Municipal Center.

Those who plan to comment during the public hearing are invited to leave written copies of their remarks with the coordinator. More information about the hearing is available from the office of the Virginia Beach school division superintendent.

First Annual Shamrock Sports Fest announced by Beach Convention Bureau

To enhance the 15th Annual Shamrock Marathon and Five-Mile races, the Virginia Beach Convention Bureau has announced the establishment of the First Annual Shamrock Sports Fest to be held from March 17 through 22.

Golf, tennis and volleyball tournaments, indoor swimming events, as well as the marathon and five miles runs are open for corporate and group team entries.

Trophies and T-shirts have been made available and two social events have been set, one to include a shag dancin' contest as part of the Corporate Challenge. A 100-booth trade show will feature manufacturers and exhibitors of fitness related products and services. Seminars, a walking event, hobie cat and windsurfer regattas will also take place.

The Sports Fest is sponsored by the city of Virginia Beach, the Hotel-Motel Association, the Restaurant Association and the Chamber of Commerce.

How to limit new laws

Thomas Jefferson is reputed to have said, "No man's life, liberty or property is safe when the General Assembly is in session." Thomas over-stated the situation to make a point. He was concerned about the increasing number of ill-advised and unneeded new laws coming out of Richmond.

And now the 1987 "short session" of the General Assembly is under way and the situation has not changed. Many important matters will be debated by the legislators, but, as in Jefferson's time, many more trivial and unnecessary laws will be introduced. It is estimated that over 1,000 pieces of legislation will be considered.

In a time long past, there was a solution to the problem. It was rough, but it worked. In ancient Greece, a custom prevailed for a while which required a man proposing a law in the popular assembly to do so on a platform with a rope around his neck. If his law passed, they removed the rope; if it failed, they removed the platform.—H.B.

Learn from the refugees

Refugees in the United States come from many countries. Forced from their homeland, they leave behind friends, family and most of their personal possessions. They will probably never see any of them again.

But once they leave the country, it does not mean their problems are over. One Virginia Beach resident who fled South Vietnam on a boat vividly recalls the trip. Food and water supplies ran low and everything was rationed. They were lost on the seas for ten days. For two months they survived on a deserted island. Once they were discovered, it was another month before a rescue ship was able to pick them up. Her trials lasted through two refugee camps until she came to the U.S.

Another person in Virginia Beach is still haunted by the memory of watching her spouse being thrown overboard to drown. He tried to stop Thai pirates from raping her on their refugee boat after it left South Vietnam. The pain may never go away.

Now settled in Virginia Beach, the refugees have new problems to deal with. Many well educated refugees are forced to take menial jobs because of the initial language problems. Adapting to the American culture is difficult for many and sometimes overwhelming. But they are willing to deal with it.

With Virginia Beach's tourist trade and military life, the population of the city tends to be transitory by nature. But to hundreds of refugees from many foreign countries, Virginia Beach has become their home.

Those of us who have not had to deal with government persecution or lived through a war should ponder the freedoms we have. I fear we sometimes take them for granted. The refugees in our community are evidence that, if we are not careful ourselves, the freedoms we cherish can be taken away.

Despite the barriers and adjustments, they work hard to stabilize themselves in this community. But they know they strive for something they could never have attained where they lived before. They are free to live and work, buy and sell, educate their children and worship wherever they wish.

Those of us who have not had to deal with government persecution or lived through a war should ponder the freedom we have. I fear we sometimes take them for granted. The refugees in our community are evidence that, if we are not careful ourselves, the freedoms we cherish can be taken away.

The struggle for independence and true freedom must not be thought of as something that is happening in a distant country and only confronted by us on the front pages of the daily newspaper and on the six o'clock news. The struggle for freedom must be continually on the hearts and minds of every person.

If we are too busy working or playing or if we leave it up to others to worry about the liberties we enjoy, they may be taken away from us. While we may maintain that our freedoms are "inalienable rights," history is replete with stories of those who lost their freedom because they were not guarding them with care.

The refugees know what it is like to have their rights disappear. They are very thankful to have made it to the United States and have them restored. That is something we should think about.—J.D.B.

Possible consequences of lottery

Editor: Pressure is mounting from various quarters, favoring a lottery in Virginia. The state's alleged cash needs cry to our lawmakers in Richmond, and Del. Billy O'Brien forges ahead with his lottery proposal insisting that Virginians need the "goose that lays the golden egg."

Let's speculate on what Virginia will be like ten years hence, if the state allows the lottery.

Virginia - 1996: In Tidewater, Richmond and Northern Virginia, lotteries, via cable TV, bring gambling into the homes of nearly all. Anyone can play the lottery and charges are automatically made to one's cable TV bill. Visa and Mastercard are accepted. Child participation in "Lotto" playing is a problem; however, it's impossible for families to provide full time supervision, since 70% of all families have two working parents or are single parented.

The Virginia Lottery Commission is pleased that video lotteries are displayed in airports and bus stations, in hotels and motels, in public buildings, grocery stores, bars, shopping malls and even at bus stops.

Billy O'Brien has just introduced another lottery bill that will allow the Virginia Lottery Commission permission to place Video Lottery machines in all public high schools. He believes that the lottery or video is an excellent alternative to health class or gym. Billy has asked that the General Assembly earmark the funds from the school-placed video machines for the funding of the new Gambling Treatment Center.

The commission continues to encourage businesses to give lottery tickets to workers in lieu of cash bonuses. After all, lottery playing provides excitement and recreation.

For the first time this past Christmas, 1996, the commission has successfully sold special subscriptions of lottery tickets. Its promo ad read, "the perfect gift for all occasions." The drive was so successful that special discounts will be given for birthdays and holidays to all participating "Lotto" players.

Basically, Virginia has had a good year this 1996; however, certain problems linger on.

School absenteeism is way up, but maybe the new video equipment, asked for by Del. O'Brien, will induce the truants to return to school.

The Virginia Employment Commission reports that 25% of the labor force is out of work; nevertheless, the Commission is grateful that lottery proceeds help it fund workers compensation checks for those out of work. The crime rate is up in Virginia 61% over the past ten years, but that's only a little over 60% per year. Statisticians remind us that Atlantic City, New Jersey went up 410% in just a three year period.

The Gambling Treatment Center reports that the average compulsive gambler in Virginia has $30,000 in gambling debts; and some have families on welfare. The center finds that compulsive gamblers further drain resources from the state with

Restoring our vocabulary

When I was born, the world was at the edge of a scientific revolution. Now, we live in it.

Now, as a professional writer, I am watching that revolution have its effect on our vocabulary. The scientific jargon of yesterday is the slang of today.

Maybe you have noticed it too. As man has moved from the earth into space, walked on the moon and delved into the outer reaches of our solar system, our vocabulary has expanded to match our experiences.

Not only have we created new words, but the words we do use have become bigger in their meaning. When I was a kid and we tried to out-bag someone, our exaggerations rarely got bigger than "as big as a mountain," or "as high as the sky." Sometimes we could throw something "all the way around the earth" or "up to the moon" but we rarely went farther. But now that we have travelled past the moon, it just isn't as far away anymore.

Now we live in the atomic age. Numbers that I grew up with are insignificant now. The words "hundreds," and if need be, "thousands," worked quite well to point out a numberless mass of anything. Those numbers just won't do. You have to talk in terms of millions and billions to get the same point across.

Thirty years ago, when something was increased, they tabbed it "super" or "jumbo." Now, new sizes are labeled "mega" or "ultra" and I'm sure the escalation will not stop.

As the public becomes more and more numb to the increasing appeal to their senses, the attempt to find an open nerve drives the game higher still. This should be a signal to our society that something is askew. But there is no simple answer to the problem.

It used to be that perfumes had the names of scents and appealing odors, sometimes a foreign word thrown in for an exotic effect. Now, to arouse our ever-bombarded senses, even blue jean makers have had to resort to using names like "obsession" and "passion" for the new line of slacks and every ad you see on TV from cars to credit cards tries to link their brand with an ever increasing emphasis on heightened sexual awareness.

As our society becomes more and more materialistic and the emphasis is laid on the superficial aspects of our existence, the exaggeration game continues. At the same time, the law of diminishing returns takes its toll. With each increase in vocabulary to get our attention, the next round brings a new increase to outdo the old.

As the public becomes more and more numb to the increasing appeal to their senses, the attempt to find an open nerve drives the game higher still. This should be a signal to our society that something is askew. But there is no simple answer to the problem.

Because we have limited ourselves to believing only empirical data (what we perceive with our five senses) we are forced into the present situation because we do not have anywhere else to go. As long as we continue to believe this way the fraud will continue.

But when you see life as more than what we can empirically comprehend, we see that there may be something beyond ourselves and therefore bigger than we could describe with words or numbers.

By limiting ourselves, I think we will find ourselves more "down to earth" in all we do, think and say. There will no longer be a need to out-do ourselves and we can stop trying to fool ourselves.—J.D.B.

Reading is FUNdamental

By Rob Jones, president, Virginia Beach Education Association

This week's commentary is supplied by Claire Polley, the vice president of the Virginia Beach Education Association. January is "Reading Month" in Virginia. Legislation signed by Governor Baliles focuses attention upon the need for all members of the Commonwealth to be literate, active readers. Throughout Virginia Beach, teachers and specialists are organizing and presenting special programs to develop the desire and interest of all school-age youngsters to become excellent readers. Research has repeatedly emphasized the need to teach children the joys of reading as well as the mechanics. Experts agree that reading is the key to school success. It must be practiced so that it becomes automatic. With "automaticity" a child doesn't have to stumble over each word. He does not need to sound out each word but can concentrate on the meaning of the phrase. According to Alan Rossman of Northwestern University, "It's not I.O.U., but the amount of time a child spends reading that is the key to 'automaticity.'" He reiterates a frequently heard piece of advice: "Turn off the T.V." Evidence collected shows that children watch 25 hours of T.V. a week, 130 minutes a day on the average. Children who spend three and one-half to four hours a week, 35 minutes a day, reading a book, magazine, or newspaper will, in all likelihood, reach automaticity. If your child can read a series of paragraphs aloud from something unfamiliar but appropriate for his age, with expression, a sense of meaning, and vocabulary, he/she is probably an automatic reader. If he reads slowly without expression or meaning, he needs more practice. To maintain good skills, keep children reading. "In the homes of top achievers, homework and reading are given priority over play or television." The VBEA praises the efforts of all those involved in Reading Month. We urge all concerned individuals to make reading a top priority year round. We urge legislators to fully fund school systems. We urge parents to express their desire for full funding for education to the legislators. Let them know you believe reading is the key and a good education the path to success. For more tips for helping your child succeed in school, attend the VBEA's workshop, "Partners in Learning, Home and School," Thursday, Jan. 29 at 7:30 p.m. at Plaza Junior High School.

Wall Street The Week Ahead

By George T. Stagg

When Nostradamus was asked about the reason for his success, he replied, "I never call the short term."

Since all the conventional measurements surrounding this market suggest a southerly correction and since the bull continues on his rampage northbound, we have decided to give our crystal ball a breather and just follow where the market leads.

While the news background waxes and wanes, the ocean of liquidity keeps rolling on. As was the case all last week, each time the market begins to enter a profit taking phase, the frustrated sideline money enters the fray. And, there seems to be a new refreshing leadership providing effervescence.

We have seen the technology stocks roaring ahead and we would note the NASDAQ over the counter volume making all time highs. The blue chips are beautiful, but on those secondaries.

Not even the dollar free fall has caused any damage. The reason here is that the currency swirls may eventually trigger an international round of interest rate cutting.

Both West Germany and Japan face sluggish economies which will worsen as the dollar declines. This will eventually force these countries to cut their rates to stem the rise in their own currencies or risk sinking their economies.

In sum, we have seen an unprecedented 11 days (through last Friday) in succession of record volume and higher highs. This market is now completely free of divergences with the troops and generals marching in tandem. It ain't over till it's over.

Finally, I heard that a ticket on the 50-yard line in Pasadena on Jan. 25 could cost as much as $1500. I'd like to go and take my wife, but she doesn't have anything to wear.

Mensa announces scholarship essay contest

Applications are now being accepted from Tidewater Mensa residents for the Virginia Beach and the Mensa Education and Research Foundation's 1986-87 scholarship essay contest. Awards of $1000, $500 and $200 will be made in each of American Mensa's nine regions. Two national awards will also be given.

Applicants do not have to be members of Mensa. The sole requirement for a regional award is the applicant be enrolled for the year following the award in a degree program in an accredited American post-secondary educational institution. The application consists of a 550-word essay, which describes the applicant's career objective. All entries must be submitted by March 1, 1987. For further information about the scholarship or to obtain an application form, contact Christa Bale, Scholarship Chair, 6300 Barnard Way, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23464. A stamped, self-addressed envelope must accompany your application request.

are as seemingly simple as home management skills, how to use the telephone, how to ride a bus and use the public transportation," Garske continued. "And they have to learn about U.S. currency, banking procedures, how to pay bills and the U.S. and local laws."

Meeting the refugees' many needs is made easier by the sponsors' volunteer help. "Americans are very assertive and somewhat aggressive," said Nguyen. "Vietnamese are quiet."

"We usually work through churches to find a family or persons who will be a sponsor," said Debbie Edson, education coordinator of the Office of Refugee Resettlement. "The needs they can help us with are to tutor, help in transportation, and to just be a friend they can call to find out something. Right now we have less than ten tutors and we could use 50."

Garske said the sponsors fill in where the case workers can't cover.

"The case workers can be spread pretty thin and the sponsors act as a link to the community, too," she said.

One person, who was a refugee and now helps other refugees, is Thao Nguyen. Born in Saigon in 1943, she fled the country of South Vietnam in 1979 with her three children and is now a case worker for the Office of Refugee Resettlement.

"Many new families back in their home country and they know they will never see them again. Sometimes the change is so hard on them that the refugee suffers from headaches, insomnia, and other ailments." --Thao Nguyen, case worker for the Office of Refugee Resettlement who fled from South Vietnam in 1979.

"I think I adjusted fast because I already knew English," she said. "I got a degree in education administration in Australia in 1971. Because of being in Australia and Saigon, which is very westernized, the change was not so difficult."

Nguyen said she has assisted about 1,000 Vietnamese but not all of them have settled in Hampton Roads.

"Most don't stay," she said. "They go to live with relatives in other places."

Other than dealing with the language, which is the biggest barrier, getting used to the culture is the most difficult.

At age two, Bich Doan has never known the horrors her grandparents and parents faced in fleeing South Vietnam.

Another problem, Nguyen said she has seen again and again, is dealing with expectations of refugees when they arrive.

"Sometimes in the resettlement camps they are told that in the U.S. you can get everything," she said. "Then when they get here and they do not get a job that pays a lot, they get depressed when all the things do not come."

Dealing with the realization that they will never be able to go back to the place they call home is also hard, said Nguyen.

"Many have family back in their home country and they know they will never see them again," she said. "Sometimes the change is so hard on them that the refugees suffer from headaches, insomnia and other physical ailments."

"Other skills they have to learn are as seemingly simple as home management skills, how to use the telephone, how to ride a bus and use the public transportation. And they have to learn about U.S. currency, banking procedures, how to pay bills and the U.S. and local laws." --Kathleen Garske, regional director of the Office of Refugee Resettlement.

The Office of Refugee Resettlement also deals with people from other countries. Edson said the most come from South East Asia but "we also have some Iranians and Afghan refugees."

Having lived through the fall of Saigon in 1975 and fleeing by boat in 1979, Trung Doan became very emotional as he shared the thankfulness he has for the United States in allowing him and his family to come here.

"I would like to say thank you to the United States of America and the American people," he said, "for protecting my family and all Vietnamese refugees. I want to express the deep gratitude I have for everything."

$10,000 Portsmouth Bowl Open

On Nov. 27/28/29/30, 440 bowlers competed for a $10,125 prize fund at the NABO Portsmouth Bowl Open tournament. Bowlers competed in qualifying squads with the top five finalists advancing to compete. Stepladder format, for the top positions. Bowling in the STEPLADDER FINALS, Harry Eagle from Gloucester, Virginia took top honors for a $2,125 first prize. Second place finisher: Ken Ingram, Virginia Beach, won $1,125; Alex Woodridge, Richmond, placed third for $575. Fourth place winner was Major Banks, from Williamsburg, won $375. Fifth place winner was Bobby Pritchett from Hampton who collected $325.

A total of 75 bowlers cashed, with 75th place receiving $50. The finals of the tournament was televised on Channel 27 on Dec. 7. For Bow Pro Bowlers Dave and Judy Soutar doing the commentary.

Tidewater Big & Little Championship

"When adults & youth team up it equals fun"

Beginning in early December, the Tidewater "BIG & LITTLE" Championship Tourney, a two-step event, conducted qualifications at Indian River Lanes, Olympian Lanes, Princess Lanes, Thunderbird Lanes, and Portsmouth Bowl, for teams of one adult and one youth competing for center championships. The tournament was conducted in two divisions, 13 years and under with an adult; and 14 years and over with an adult, competing for the chance to bowl in the Championship roll-off held at Princess Lanes on Dec. 14. Five championship teams, from each division, representing their respective bowling center, competed for the Tidewater Championship.

Michael Robison and his son Cory, representing Indian River Lanes, won the 13 and under division, and Gary Eason (adult) and Kevin Warren, representing Indian River Lanes, won the 14 and over division.

The championship teams will be awarded local qualifying first place trophies and will receive Tidewater Championship bowling shirts designating Tidewater Champions for 1986-87. This year competition was very close and exciting, all who entered are to be congratulated!

CRAZY TEN LEAGUE: Randy Betting and Billy Mulhearn-244; Cliff Foreman-640; George "Rody" O'Berry-233; Lew Tyree-611; Bobby Buck-254/656. Team #1, Don and the FIQ had agreed to a one-day competition during the early days of the Olympics.

Exhibition status differs from demonstration status in that leading will "show its stuff" on the second day of competition. The highest scoring 12 men and women from a pre-Olympic qualifying tournament will bowl a round-robin event in the Seoul area, with the highest four men and four women advancing to a stepladder format that hopefully will be televised world-wide. There is that possibility.

Many details have not yet been determined. For example, it has not been decided whether there will be singles, doubles, trios and five player competition in 1988 leading up to determining the top 24 men and women according to highest pinfall. Those 24 will continue on, attempting to make the top 12 and start fresh in Seoul in September 1988. Every FIQ member nation is entitled to enter its bowlers in the qualifying tournament. Since FIQ enjoys membership in all five of the Olympic regions, at least 40 and perhaps 60 nations could be expected to send at least one representative.

"We are gratified that bowling, one of the most popular of sports in the world with more than 100 million participants in our 71 member countries, has received this recognition," Tesson told the gathering in N.Y. Our goal is to show the world that amateur bowlers are world-class athletes and to have bowling recognized as an official Olympic sport in time for the 1992 summer games."

CBN University names new chairman of the board

The CBN University Board of Regents has named Dee Jepsen, a member of the university's governing board since 1985, as Chairman of the Board. Bob G. Slosser, president of CBN University, made the announcement today.

The accredited graduate university currently enrolls 150 students from all 30 states and 17 foreign countries in schools of communication, education, theology, law, business, public policy and journalism.

Slosser also announced the appointment of four new members of the governing board to replace those members whose terms are expiring. New regents are Roger L. Visser, an orthodontist, Virginia Beach; Robert O. Snelling Sr., Founder and President of Snelling and Snelling Inc., Sarasota, Fla.; and Timothy B. Robertson, President of The Christian Broadcasting Network Inc.

Mrs. Jepsen lives in the Washington, D.C., area with her husband, Roger, the former U.S. senator from Iowa and now Chairman of the National Credit Union Administration.

A former adviser to President Reagan on women's issues, Mrs. Jepsen lectures extensively across the nation on a variety of topics. She has written several books, the most recent being "Women Beyond Equal Rights."

Retiring board members are Lawrence Beamer, Newport News, Va., and three members from Virginia Beach: S. Tucker Yates, the former chairman; Mrs. Dede Robertson; and J. Brock Nelson.

Almberg named corporate vice president

Francis J. Almberg, a Virginia Beach resident, has been promoted to vice president at American Systems Engineering Corporation (AmSEC).

Cari M. Albero, president and chief executive officer, in announcing the promotion, recognized the important contribution which Almberg has made to this rapidly expanding engineering services firm and praised his superior performance, expertise and dedicated efforts which have added AmSEC in its growth and success.

Almberg joined AmSEC in its second year of operation in 1983, as the director of finance and immediately began to prepare himself and the Finance Department for a period of rapid growth and major expansion.

At that time, the annual sales were in the vicinity of $5 million. Today, AmSEC's sales exceed $17 million and the company has over 450 employees working in sixteen states.

AmSEC's corporate headquarters is in Virginia Beach.

Almberg

United States Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point in 1954 with a B.S. Degree in Marine Engineering. After serving in the U.S. Navy for 24 years as a Naval Aviator, he embarked on a new career and enrolled at St. Leo's College where he earned a degree in Accounting.

Almberg and his family reside in the Kings Grant section of Workshops for adults offered on "Returning to the Classroom"

The Adult Studies Program at Virginia Wesleyan College is offering two workshops for Virginia Beach adults returning to the classroom.

The first workshops, entitled "Survival Skills for the Adult Returning to College," are scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 17, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and for Wednesday, Jan. 21, at 7 p.m. Attendance is limited, and reservations should be made by calling the Adult Studies Program office at 461-3232.

The workshops are open to all interested persons who are thinking about returning to college but are worrying about rusty study skills.

Topics include: finding time to study, calming fears about returning to the classroom, building study skills, and juggling the roles of student, parent and employee.

Dorothy Hinman, director of Adult Studies at Virginia Wesleyan, will conduct the workshops and current students will discuss solutions to problems encountered by adults returning to college.

Leukemia Society holds waiters' race

The Leukemia Society of America, Virginia Chapter, has invited all restaurants in Virginia Beach to participate in the first annual waiters race to benefit leukemia.

The waiters' race will be held Sunday, Feb. 1, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Pavilion Tower Hotel ballroom, and is sponsored by various businesses.

Waiters and waitresses will collect donations for their participation in a timed obstacle course while carrying a tray with wine and beer. The participant who collects the most donations will win two airline tickets. Other incentive prizes include weekend trips to Washington, D.C., T-shirts, sweaters, and plaques.

For further information and sponsorship forms, call Vicki Kigerl at 467-2739.

Crime Solvers looking for oceanfront robbers

Virginia Beach Crime Solvers is asking for help in solving a costly burglary that occurred at the oceanfront.

Sometime during the night on Jan. 1, thieves broke into the Active Sports Limited store located in the Pacific Place Shoppes, 3198 Pacific Avenue, by throwing a car jack through the front glass door. Once inside, over $16,000 worth of sports apparel was stolen.

The items taken were mostly jogging and warm-up suits with the following brand names: Head, Addia, Lecoq Sports, Winning Ways, Reebok, Nike, Frank Shorter, Ultra Sport, Dayton, and Tail.

Burglars attempted to break in again on Saturday, Jan. 10, but were not successful.

Crime Solvers asks anyone with information about these crimes or any other crime committed in Virginia Beach to call 427-0000. If the information provided by the caller leads to an arrest or the recovery of the stolen property, the caller will receive a cash reward of up to $1,000.

PUBLIC NOTICE

On October 13, 1986 the City Council of the City of Virginia Beach adopted the $4,500,000 Revenue Sharing capital budget for fiscal year 1986-1987. A detailed list of projects scheduled for funding is available for public inspection on weekdays at the Office of Budget and Evaluation, Room 323, City Hall Building between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. and at all city area libraries during regularly scheduled hours of operation.

Doggett announces retirement after 41 years of service

Virginia Beach resident John W. Doggett, Jr., vice president-purchaser for Noland Company and formerly manager of its Norfolk operations, has announced he will retire on March 1, after 41 years of service with the wholesale distribution firm.

Doggett

The company said the naming of Doggett's successor has been postponed, pending the outcome of a previously announced review of the present management organization.

Doggett, who turned 65 in Sept. of 1986, will also give up the board of director's seat he has occupied since 1974.

CEO Lloyd U. Noland, Jr., said Doggett "has been a part of our company for as long as any of us can remember. His leadership presence in Noland's purchasing function in the recent past will be greatly missed."

Doggett, whose father, the late J.W. Doggett, Sr., was one of the original employees of the 72-year-old company, first worked for Noland on a part-time basis at the age of 13.

He joined the company on a full-time basis in 1946, after graduating from Virginia Tech and serving during World War II as commanding officer of a U.S. Army radar unit.

He was named director of purchases in General Office in 1979, and was elected a vice president later that year.

"The responsibilities of quarterbacking the company's dealings with a multitude of vendors for thousands of different products are demanding and complex," said Noland, "requiring the highest ethical standards, tough negotiating skills, and a keen sense of fair play. John Doggett has exemplified all of these essential attributes in all his dealings with our suppliers."

Graham elected HSMIAI treasurer

Glenn Graham, vice president and general manager of The Virginia Beach Resort and Conference Center (VBRCC), was recently elected treasurer of Hotel Sales and Marketing Association International (HSMIAI).

The announcement came during the association's Annual Convention. Graham will serve in his new capacity for HSMIAI, a 7,000 member trade association composed of 94 chapters worldwide, for one year. In addition to being elected treasurer, Graham also served two terms as president of the HSMIAI Chapter of the Virginias, which was honored with the prestigious Chapter of the Year Award.

Rose given CRB award

Jimmy V. Rose, president of Rose & Krieth Realty Corp., has been awarded the designation of Certified Real Estate Brokerage manager (CRB) by the Real Estate Brokerage Council of the Realtors National Marketing Institute, an affiliate of the National Association of Realtors.

Rose

The award was made recently at the Council's Annual Convention held in New York City.

The CRB designation is the highest award that can be conferred on real estate brokerage managers in recognition of their experience and educational achievements. It has been a mark of distinction in the field since 1969.

Editorial

More than a doctor

For most doctors, a practice which includes over 2,000 patients would keep them pretty busy. For Dr. Richard Easton, the nearly 5,000 employees of the city of Virginia Beach keep him really busy.

Being the head man at the Occupational Health Department means that Easton does more than practice medicines. He tries to find out if things other than viruses and bacteria, bumps and bruises keep people away from their work. He looks for the other reasons. Are they having financial problems? Are there problems at home? Is there too much stress in the office?

That keeps absenteeism down and saves the taxpayers money. No only does he enjoy his job but he enjoys working because he knows that his efforts help the individual employees and every citizen as well.

Working with other city departments, Easton works hard to see that as much is done as possible to keep the employees of Virginia Beach at their job as much as possible. That keeps absenteeism down and saves the taxpayers money. Not only does he enjoy his job but he enjoys working because he knows that his efforts help the individual employees and every citizen as well.

Efforts like his are to be commended. Easton and his entire staff make the city of Virginia Beach work a little more smoothly.—J.D.B.

4-H offers five week fashion etiquette series

Virginia Beach youth (10-16 years) are invited to participate in a five week series on Fashion Etiquette which will be held at the 4-H office, Agriculture Department, from 6 to 7:30 p.m. on the following dates: Feb. 3, 10, 17, 24 and March 5.

The classes will include such things as planning, modeling tips, hair and skin care and more. This series is a good opportunity to sharpen your poise and appearance for any occasion.

Registration is limited. Spaces will be filled on a "first come first serve" basis.

Call the 4-H office at 427-4617 to pre-register. Registration deadline is Jan. 26.

Cultural events calendar available to public

The Special Events Committee of Virginia Wesleyan College has published the calendar of cultural events for the spring semester.

Lectures, art shows, films and concerts (with the exception of the Jan. 31 Charlie Byrd concert) are free and open to the public. There are admission fees ($3) for plays if so indicated on calendar.

Reservations should be made for concerts and plays by calling the college switchboard at 461-3232. Reservations are not required for films, lectures, and other programs.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Virginia Beach Board of Zoning Appeals will conduct a Public Hearing on Wednesday, February 4, 1987, at 2:00 p.m., in the Council Chambers of the City Hall Building, Municipal Center, Virginia Beach, Virginia. The staff briefing will be held at 1:30 p.m., in the City Council Meeting Office. The following applications will appear on the agenda.

*PLEASE NOTE: If no one appears before the Board to represent the applicant, the variance could be denied!

REGULAR AGENDA:

Case 1: Harold T. Lemar, Jr. requests a variance to allow parking of major recreational equipment in front of a building instead of behind the nearest portion of a building adjacent to a public street on Lot 5, Block LL, Section 1, Part 6, Oak Springs, 3779 Upland Road, Princess Anne Borough.

Case 2: L. A. Hendricks requests a variance of 4 feet to a 6 foot side yard setback (east side) instead of 10 feet as required (residential addition and deck) on Lot 6, Block 2, Section 7, Windsor Woods, 3816 Old Forge Road, Kempsville Borough.

Case 3: Lois A. Rooney requests a variance of 3 feet to a 2 foot side yard setback (east side) instead of 5 feet as previously approved by the Board of Zoning Appeals on December 4, 1985 (proposed deck) on Lot 7, Section B, Princess Anne Hills, 428 Gosnold Court, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 4: Virginia Smith requests a variance of 5 feet to a 5 foot rear setback instead of 10 feet as required and of 3.9 feet to a 4.1 foot side yard setback (west side) instead of 8 feet as required (accessory building - detached garage) on Lot A, Resubdivision of Ivey Glen, 456 Linkhorn Drive, Virginia Beach Borough.

Case 5: John Vakos by Bruce Gallup, Surveyor, requests a variance of 5 feet to a "0" setback from the east and south property lines instead of 5 feet each as required and to waive the landscaping required in these setbacks (6 story motel) on Lots 8, 10 and part of Lot 7, Block 13, Virginia Beach Development Company, 1300 Atlantic Avenue, Virginia Beach Borough.

Case 6: Bethel Pentecostal Holiness Church requests a variance of 1.98 acres of land area of 1.02 acres of land instead of 3 acres of land as required for a church on a Parcel, Pungo, 1814 Indian River Road, Pungo Borough.

Case 7: Resort Developments request a variance of 10 feet to a 25 foot setback from Shippo Lane instead of 35 feet as required on Lots 35 and Part of Lot 3, Block 50, Oceana Gardens, Southwest Corner of Virginia Beach Boulevard and Shippo Lane, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 8: Robert Weisbard requests a variance of 2 feet in fence height to a 6 foot fence instead of a 4 foot fence as allowed in a required side yard setback on Lot 19, Birdneck Acres, 1101 Bluebird Drive, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 9: Stanley M. Roberts requests a variance of 2 feet to a 5 foot rear yard setback and of 2 feet to an 8 foot side yard setback (east side) instead of 10 feet each as required (swimming pool) on Lot 15, Block O, Section 3, Part 1-F, Great Neck Meadows, 2064 Regatta Circle, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 10: Mr. Bernard A. Hamm, Jr. requests a variance of 5 feet to a 5 foot side yard setback (north side) and of 2 feet to an 8 foot rear yard setback (east side) instead of 10 feet each as required (swimming pool) on Lot 1, Block D, Section 1-A, Wellington Woods, 2252 North Wolfslane Road, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 11: Andrew A. and Susan A. Ott requests a variance of 25 feet to a 5 foot setback from Indian Lakes Boulevard instead of 30 feet as required (through lot) (accessory buildings - storage shed and detached garage and swimming pool) on Lot 13, Block M, Section 2, Stratford Chase, 1205 Exeter Landing, Kempville Borough.

Case 12: Marriott Corporation requests a variance to allow a perimeter driveway in the required front yard setback (Golden Oak Court) where prohibited (proposed hotel/motel) on Lot A3-A, Section A, Resubdivision of Reader Property, Lynnhaven Area, South Lynnhaven Road, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 13: Time Construction Corporation requests a variance of 6 feet to a 24 foot front yard setback (Apple Tree Crescent) instead of 12 feet as required (new residence) on Lot 39, Cason Farm, Apple Tree Crescent, Princess Anne Borough.

Case 14: Dr. Allan C. Sudin requests a variance of 14 feet to a 4 foot side yard adjacent to a street (Holly Avenue) instead of 18 feet as required (porch and steps) on Lot 229, The Hollies, 401 49th Street, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 15: Lynne W. and Thomas W. Godfrey, Jr. requests a variance of 14 feet to a 4 foot side yard adjacent to a street (Wake Forest Street) instead of 18 feet as required (new duplex) on Lot 2, Plat #1, Cape Story by the Sea, 2652 Ocean Shore Avenue, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 16: U.S. Fiberglass Products, Inc. and Porpoise Enterprises request a variance to allow parking between the street (Cypress Avenue) and the front of the building where prohibited (proposed retail building) on Lots 17 and 18, and remainder of Lots 19 and 20, Block 37, Virginia Beach Development Company, 19th Street and Cypress Avenue, Virginia Beach Borough.

Case 17: Boyd Homes C/O John E. Sirine requests a variance of 23 feet to a 12 foot setback from Newtown Road instead of 35 feet as required (proposed retail shops) on Parcel E, Newportine Shopping Center, Newtown Road, Bayside Borough.

Case 18: Frank's Nursery by Hilltop Copeland Associates requests a variance of 2 feet in fence height to a 6 foot fence instead of a 4 foot fence as allowed in a required setback from a street (Piney Bark Drive) on Lot 10, Section 11, Pine Ridge, 2328 Windy Pines Road, Princess Anne Borough.

DEFERRED AGENDA:
Case 1: William G. Throckmorton, Jr. requests a variance of 2 feet in fence height to a 6 foot fence instead of a 4 foot fence as allowed in a required setback from a street (Piney Bark Drive) on Lot 10, Section 11, Pine Ridge, 2328 Windy Pines Road, Princess Anne Borough.

APPLICANTS MUST APPEAR BEFORE THE BOARD
*PLEASE NOTE: If no one appears before the Board to represent the applicant, the variance could be denied!

Steady as she goes

Perched on the eighth floor of the Gateway Towers building, now under construction on the oceanfront, Danny Ringer uses hand signals to direct the crane operator down on the ground where to maneuver a 8-ton load of concrete on the top of the building.

Easton is city's doctor

until then the responsibility was given to a registered nurse. "There was a lot to do in the new position."

"The first thing I did was work to get our offices out of a trailer and into the present building," he said. "That took a long time."

But his main focus has been on the city's employees.

"Everything they do, as far as injury or illness, which interferes with their ability to work, we deal with," he said. "Whether it is occupationally related or if they contact a sickness at home. If it affects their work, they can come to me."

One of his most interesting and most dangerous cases dealt with a high ranking city official.

"He came to me with a rash on his face and it was hard to tell if it was shingles or poison ivy," he said. "The problem is if you treat it for one and it is the other it could cause permanent blindness."

After consulting some specialists, they treated it and everything was fine.

In that case and in many others, he said, having a doctor on call for the employees, "allows for rapid diagnosis and referral. That limits the possibility of life-long disability."

Part of Dr. Easton's job is administrative. He works with the city's other departments to be continually aware of what is going on with the employees of the city at every level.

"One of the beauties of being in salaried service," he continued, "is the focus you have to serve the people."

Easton, who lives with his wife Frances in Sandbridge, said it has been awhile since he has had employees use his service to try to get out of work.

"When I first started, a lot of employees seemed to try to use the services to get out of work but that has dropped off," he said. "But then they started to see the service as a place to deal with real medical problems and it was to their advantage to use it honestly."

One thing Easton emphasized is the distinction between what he does and what the Department of Public Health does.

"They are concerned with the public health of the citizens of Virginia Beach," he said. "I deal with the health of the city's employees only. Not their spouses, not their dependents. Just the employees."

Understanding the relationship between a person's occupation and their health is important, said Easton. In one case almost an entire office complained. It ended up that it wasn't a physical illness but the work environment had deteriorated because of poor communication and tension. "People had just stopped paying attention to one another and got wrapped up in their own situation," said Easton. "Once I realized the root was not physical in nature I got some of them together and they worked it out themselves. The problem was office dissatisfaction."

As the director of occupational health, Easton is conscious of the overall health of the employee community.

"Though we would like to think of Virginia Beach as a clean city," he said, "we are seeing more people with drug-related problems, whether it be prescription drugs or those obtained on the street."

"I wouldn't say it is a monumental problem," he continued, "but there has been an increase in the use of marijuana, prescription drugs and alcohol, even a small bit of cocaine. But within the employee population the actual problem is the same for all industry, and if there is an abuse, it is usually with alcohol."

When Easton isn't working, there are times when you may not be able to contact him at all.

"I'm a certified scuba diver and I've discovered the world of underwater photography," he said. "The best thing about it is my beeper doesn't work under water and there are no telephones there."

Edwards retires from federal civil service

(command's) labor and employee relations and services program (which) reflect her in-depth knowledge and understanding..."

Captain Allen also presented a station plaque and a retirement certificate to Edwards.

Praise also came from commanding Office Fleet Combat Training Center, Atlantic, Dam Neck Captain John Narciso, whose command was also served by Edwards. He presented her with a command plaque.

Chief of Labor Relations for the Office of Civilian Personnel Management, Southeast Region Walt Bagby read a congratulatory letter from the region's director, G. W. Wooten. His letter praised Edwards' pursuit of excellence, devotion and dedication.

"You have been an inspiration to your peers - an example of personal excellence, perseverance and hard work," read Wooten's representative.

Edwards then received a Commander in Chief U.S. Atlantic Fleet plaque presented by Bagby.

To guarantee that Edwards' memories of 22 years at NAS Oceana would not soon fade, co-workers and friends gave her a brass ship's clock as a parting gift.

Formal farewells gave way to a "roasting." Metal Trades Council Chief Steward M. E. "Butch" Halterman noted, "After we heard Emma Lee was retiring and stopped jumping for joy in the union office, we decided that she had treated us fairly and equitably through all of our dealings with her."

He gave her a union hat with five different pins on it. "A union hat is no good without pins on it," explained Halterman.

As a trade-off for his having to participate in some labor negotiations and become an "expert" in the process, former NAS Oceana Supply Officer Commander Jay Smith inducted Edwards into the Supply Corps as an "Honorary Supply Officer."

According to the certificate, "she may use MILSTRIP, MILSTAMP UADPS, NALCOMIS, UMMIPS, IDA/FIMS, MERT PAY, and NCPDS terminology (Navy acronyms) as though she understands it."

Concluding the ceremony, Civilian Personnel Director Colleen Sherman said that the command's "labor relations program is the best... and it is because Emma Lee built it."

Pam Lingle

As director of the city's multimedia public information office, Lingle handles public relations and public information

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

When Pamela M. Lingle, fresh out of college, first came to work in 1973 at the Virginia Beach Municipal Center, she was charged with creating a new "services information hotline."

Operating as a "one-stop shopping place" for people to register complaints or obtain information, she kept most of her facts on file in a small Rolodex.

And now, 14 years later, she has successfully risen from her initial status as administrative aide to the director of the city's Office of Public Information, which last year fielded 130,000 phone calls and each month produces an average of 157 hours of original cable television programming.

"We always wish we could do more," Lingle, a Kempsville resident, said. "But with the limited resources we work with we can only do about 40 percent of what we are contracted about from the various departments."

Lingle's office, which falls under the direction and responsibility of City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck, is always ready to assist any of the city's other departments. She views her role as well as taking complaints and requests for services.

Media Services acts as a liaison between the city and the press. Facilitating media coverage of the city's projects, events and people. In addition, this unit produces a diverse array of publications and coordinates special events.

Municipal Cable is the unit comprising Virginia Beach's government access television channel, Citicable 29. Its many programs are designed to provide citizens a glimpse into city government and what makes it work.

Call 427-4111 for more information.

"It's fortunate in this city that everyone is under the same pressure," she added. "They know we can't reach everyone and we try to call back and say what we can do and what we can't."

Muehlenbeck said Lingle serves his and other city offices in a "support role."

"It is up to her to put the city's best foot forward," he said.

Muehlenbeck also noted that it was under Lingle's care that the

PIO office made up of three units

Virginia Beach's Public Information Office conducts a variety of projects and programs designed to provide citizens with up-to-date, accurate information.

The office is composed of three units: Administrative, Media Services and Municipal Cable Productions.

Administrative handles PIO general business functions and strategic planning, as well as operating the Services and Information Hotline. This innovative telephone service receives an average of 130,000 calls each year and directs callers to the appropriate city-sponsored, and other resources as well as taking complaints and requests for services.

Media Services acts as a liaison between the city and the press. Facilitating media coverage of the city's projects, events and people. In addition, this unit produces a diverse array of publications and coordinates special events.

nation," Muehlenbeck said.

During her years of working at City Hall, the city has experienced many changes. Lingle has viewed these changes firsthand and been a part of them. But she never really intended to remain so long in Virginia Beach.

"When I first started my goal was to become an assistant city manager, though not necessarily here," she said. "Then I saw that you had to do a lot of moving and being a city manager at small towns first before you got anywhere. But once I got into this department my position sort of evolved into what it is now. I just stayed."

A William and Mary College graduate, Lingle said she planned to take her government degree with a concentration in international relations to Washington, D.C. to land a federal job. Lingle also obtained a master's degree in Urban Studies and Public Administration from Old Dominion University in 1979.

"I went through two interviews with the Central Intelligence Agency," she said, but the position of "information classifier did not sound too exciting so I came to Virginia Beach."

Over the years, as city offices have caught up with automation, the complexion of Lingle's job has changed.

"I think technology has changed my job description," she said, alluding to the computerization of disseminating press releases, cable programming, satellites and the mass news media. But dealing with the media is not Lingle's major concern.

"I think the challenge is to provide the most information in a limited budget," she said.

Lingle said she spends much of her time "overseeing the 20 employees in my department." One of those staff members, Beatrice Kitchen, coordinator of media services, said that Lingle is very adept at delegating responsibility. And that, Kitchen said, "is the sign of a good administrator."

Pam Lingle, director, Office of Public Information

"She gives you a lot of freedom," Kitchen continued, "to use your own strengths to get the job done the best way you can."

In addition to the phone calls and cable programming, Lingle's office also writes and sends out about 25 to 35 fresh news releases monthly. The phone calls alone her office answers equals more than 10,000 calls each month or about 360 calls a day.

Compared to other comparably sized cities, Lingle said Virginia Beach stacks up well in the public information and public relations departments.

"I went to a conference of the International City Management Association," she said, where participants discussed and compared themselves to a "model city." "I saw that we were doing as much or more than they were," she said.

But above all, Lingle clearly understands her office's obligation to the members of the Virginia Beach community. "As the public information office, we are here to meet their needs," she said. "We are the communications link between the citizens and the city government. We do everything we can to let them know what is going on and pass on information that the various departments think the public needs to know."

Minimum wage

Senator's proposed 37 percent increase in minimum wage draws mixed reactions from Beach observers

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

In response to the possibility of the federal minimum wage being increased from $3.35 to $4.60 in the near future, local observers differ in their views as to the impact it would have on the Virginia Beach economy.

Identifying some of the benefits and drawbacks, government and private sector professionals commented that with Virginia Beach's heavy reliance on the tourist industry and the thousands of summer-time jobs which pay minimum wage or close to it, any change in the pay structure would affect this area.

"I think it will generate employment in the area," said James Ricketts, coordinator of the city's Division of Tourist Development. "We will just have to wait and see until something like this comes up. But, I think a higher minimum wage will make it more attractive for young people to come here to work a summer job."

"We will just have to wait and see until something like this comes up. But, I think a higher minimum wage will make it more attractive for young people to come here to work a summer job."

Robert H. Vakos, president of the 120-member Virginia Beach Hotel and Motel Association, sees it another way.

"It will hurt youth employers," he said. "It is an expense that isn't recovered."

"It would be nice if the future minimum wage law was tied to a youth program," Vakos continued. In the past "we have had to curtail the employment of youth because many employers would rather hire an older person and give them more responsibility."

"It will hurt employers. It is an expense that isn't recovered."—Robert Vakos, president of the Virginia Beach Hotel and Motel Association.

Ricketts and Vakos were responding to a recently published report that Sen. Edward Kennedy would press in Congress for an increase in the federal minimum wage of at least $1.25 above the present $3.35, an increase of 37 percent. The present minimum wage level has not changed since 1981.

"It seems to me to be a two-sided sword," said City Councilman Robert Fontrose. "While it seems desirable, I would guess it hurts the free enterprise system. The tourist industry that hires for the summer season would be severely impacted."

"I don't know how you can pass a law like this and not hurt some segment of the society," he continued. "In this case it is the young employer."

Virginia Venabic, administrative assistant in the Department of Economic Development for the city of Virginia Beach, said because it is a national regulation, "it won't hurt us individually."

"The employment base is steady in Virginia Beach," she continued. Even with the close to 5,000 full-time and part-time workers that seek jobs in Virginia Beach during the summer months "the majority of workers are employed by manufacturing firms and they don't pay minimum wage."

Bush wins IRA welterweight title

Virginia Beach pro kick-boxer Curtis Bush recently won the International Karate Associations Southeastern Welterweight title with a victory over Alan Watson.

Engessor pushes for crusade

Robert Engessor, a retired Marine, has invited City Council to join his crusade for peace.

He told City Council last week that when he retired in 1977 he took up a crusade for social justice. A flag at his home in Fairfield, he said, is flown at half-mast to remind the community of the 241 American Marines who died on bloody Sunday to bring peace to Lebanon.

Councilman John Perry, who sponsored Engessor's address last week, said he did so because he believes in free speech for everyone regardless of race, color or creed.

Vandals damage shelter for homeless families

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

Though thieves and vandals do not usually discriminate who they victimize, when they broke into a small duplex at 2603 Kempsville Road, their crime seemed doubly insensitive.

The house, vacant for some time, was being restored by Ecumenical Housing Inc., an independent organization in Virginia Beach, to provide housing to homeless families.

"If it wasn't for the break-in and damage," said George Williams, one of the original board members of Ecumenical Housing, Inc., "we would already be in operation."

"We don't know when it was done," said Flora Hayale, chairman of the organization. "The police are being very helpful but no one was living there and we don't know when it happened."

Ecumenical Housing already has one home in operation in the Princess Anne Plaza area called the Samaritan House which has housed over 100 families in the past two years. "We've got people needing a place right now," said Williams. The new house on Kempsville Road is called Samaritan House II.

Larry Tomlin, a representative for Smith & Keene Electrical Service, estimated the damage to the air conditioning units at the duplex would run over $300. "One unit I know is bad, the other one will have to be looked at," he said.

But most of the damage was done to the plumbing system. All the copper tubing on the outside of the house and under the foundation was ripped out. Plus, two

City Council has passed an ordinance increasing the fine from $10 to $25. However, if the fine is not paid in three days, it will be doubled. If the $50 fine is not paid in 30 days, the offender would be subject to a maximum fine of $100 plus costs in General District Court.

Area cities already are considering similar legislation. In Chesapeake, Council has asked the city attorney to draw an ordinance matching the penalties adopted in Virginia Beach.

The Virginia Beach ordinance provides for a parking citation to be issued against the vehicle's owner unless the officer observes the violation in which case he will cite the offender.

The ordinance also requires that the car parked in the handicapped spaces have "handicapped-parking" license plates issued by the Division of Motor Vehicles and authorizes the posting of the notice of the minimum $25 fine.

Terms of Moore deal spelled out

With the R. G. Moore $14 million suit behind it, the city is now determined that a similar situation does not come up again.

Mayor Robert G. Jones said, after reading terms of a settlement last week, that the city will study the issue so that remedies can be put into place to prevent a recurrence.

At a work session earlier, Vice Mayor Meyera Oberdorff suggested that the school system have someone sit in at City Council meetings where issues affecting the schools are scheduled to be considered.

The R. G. Moore Building Corporation had sued the city for $14 million because that the company was losing money as a result of the city's refusal to approve site plans for the Ocean Lakes subdivision.

Action deferred to next meeting

This week's regular City Council meeting was cut short because of snow. All items were deferred to next Monday when council members hold their regular meeting at 2 p.m. at City Hall.

Quietly doing her job

In her 14 years of service to the city, Pam Lingle has given much. Not only that, in spite of her job as director of the Public Information Office, she has more or less stayed out of the limelight, quietly doing her job, and doing it well.

Her commitment to her job and the quality of her work is reflected in the number of years she has continued in the office and her advancement to the position of director. Her knowledge of the city's workings has allowed her to organize and administer her office effectively and efficiently.

While most of us only see the results of her work in the form of the news and information that comes out of the Public Information Office, those that work with her see much more. Their praise is not limited to her ability to get things done, but also the way she gets things done.

Not only is she an excellent motivator of others, but she leads by example. While she may carry the title of director, those that work with her know she is working alongside them, in touch with the daily happenings.

Being in charge of the information office of the rapidly growing city of Virginia Beach is not easy. Pam Lingle's ability to be the "go-between" for the residents of the city and the city government is to be praised.

The next time you read an announcement about a city activity or hear about a program in one of the many departments of the city, you can be sure that Pam Lingle is still at work, quietly getting the job done.—J.D.B.

Minimum wage

The attractiveness of setting a new minimum wage level is deceptive. If only a passing thought is given to it, minimum wage seems advantageous without hurting anyone. But on closer examination, a minimum wage can be hurtful. Even to the people it tries to help.

Basically, minimum wage is supposed to help low skilled workers earn enough to get by in today's world. No new taxes are levied. The average citizen is happy. It seems to do the trick. But the new money is not created out of thin air. Don't be fooled by surface appearances.

In many cases, if the wage is raised, the employer who pays it may have to cut back on the number of people he employs. The final effect is fewer jobs. That doesn't help anyone.

For the businessman, the cost incurred is eventually passed on to the consumer. Prices go up to cover overhead. Everyone is hurt by that.

In some cases, the small businessman is hurt. Unable to absorb the new cost, he is forced to pay the new wage and even more when you figure the added burden of employer taxes and benefits. The move is hailed as help for the "little man" and forgets the other little men that are caught in the fallout.

Politically, it is a good move. Few legislators would want to vote against it. It would look insensitive to the needs of the public. Setting a new minimum wage is easily justified. Socially and economically it creates a "safety net" to keep people from becoming indigent. The government, without increasing the welfare budget, uses their legal power to protect the poor.

But except for the small percentage a minimum wage law protects, the rest of the citizenry is affected negatively. Initially, most do not feel the cost. But over time, the cost of paying for the poor touches everyone.—J.D.B.

Sadness, not outrage

Ecumenical Housing, Inc., is trying to help the homeless of Virginia Beach. Private gifts, donations of furniture and volunteer service allows this organization to reach out to families in need. And all of it is done without the assistance of federal or state aid.

While they continually struggle against meeting their financial commitments, they recently became victims of vandalism at one of their two homes for the homeless.

A response of outrage would be expected. But their response is one of sadness. They are sad that there are some who would stoop so low as to vandalize their home as it prepares to open. They are sad the opening was delayed. They are sad that those in need will have to wait.

They would have hoped that their limited funds could go toward helping those in need. Now their funds will have to go to repair the damage done by vandals.—J.D.B.

Where have all the heroes gone?

Do you remember Roberto Clemente? He was a perennial all-star right fielder for the Pittsburgh Pirates. More than that, he was a man of character.

As an athlete, he was feared in the league because of his versatility on the field and at the plate. He could get on base by bunting, slash a single to any field, or just as easily, hit a home-run.

Once on base he was a threat to steal second and opposing outfielders knew he was a tough runner to throw out at the plate. As for his play in the outfield, he practically owned it. He routinely made catches that looked like sure hits. Once he had the ball, baserunners knew how to try to "stretch" their hits for another base—he would throw you out. The test of a rightfielder is his ability to make the throw from deep right to third base. Roberto throws looked like bullets and he made them look easy.

As you can tell, Clemente was my hero.

But he was my hero for more than this. Off the field he was known as a gentleman, a family man, a man of the community. His tragic death, while aboard a plane that crashed while ferrying aid to earthquake victims, reflects his character.

I wince when I see the sports heroes of today get tangled up in drugs, scuffles with the police, or other troubles.

Webster's Dictionary defines a hero as "a man of distinguished courage, moral and physical." These days, someone like that is hard to find.

I wince when I see the sports heroes of today get tangled up in drugs, scuffles with the police, or other troubles.

Webster's Dictionary defines a hero as "a man of distinguished courage, moral and physical." These days, someone like that is hard to find.

It seems to me that the heroes of days gone by have been replaced not with new heroes, but with celebrities.

The difference is more than semantics. In comparison, celebrities can be but a flash in the pan. Heroes have character, celebrities are sometimes media creations unsubstantial in the long run.

Every once in a while a survey is taken to see who it is that our youth admire. These surveys, for what they are worth, back up my contention.

Scattered among the Top Ten are a few people I would consider worthy of praise. But for the most part, the Top Ten consist of men and women whose popularity depends on high movie or TV ratings and who seek attention through outlandish activity rather than by standing on principle and long term commitments.

It does my heart good to see a few people, many times those who are not even looking for attention, getting attention. It is hard to identify many of them. Not because there aren't any but because true heroes do not seek the limelight.

There are many people in our society worthy of admiration. But it seems that "moral or physical courage" has been left by the wayside and replaced by flashbulbs and press releases.

Owls: Real harbingers of spring

By Craig Tufts,
National Wildlife Federation

While we ourselves may feel no hint of spring in the winter air, invisible hormonal changes are taking place within many plants and animals as their internal clocks tick to the tune of imperceptibly lengthening days.

First signs of spring come earlier than the return of robins or the songs of bluebirds, or even the bursting into bloom of hazel nut and skunk cabbages.

Late December/early January sees a cranking up of spring activities among two large species of fairly common North American owls: the great horned owl and the barred owl.

The great horned owl, the larger of the two, will be sitting on eggs come late January/early February, even in the coldest part of its nesting range. It starts setting up its nesting territories by Christmas, right around the shortest day of the year.

That's a great time to listen for the hooting of pairs, as any hardy participant of the annual Christmas bird count will tell you.

Some ice-crystal-clear morning, at 4:30 or 5 a.m., just sit yourself on a woodland hilltop and listen for the great horned owls, "partitioned off" from each other, each pair guarding acres and acres of woodlands. The deeper hoot of the male will respond to the more mellow alto hoot of the female.

Sometimes different pairs of owls—perhaps four or five—will call to each other.

These "big-eared," night flying tigers of the North American skies are incredibly powerful raptors. Though great horned owls are known to prey mainly on small mammals and certain bird species, these are legends about the size and diversity of their prey: small house cats, skunks, even young peregrine falcons.

Owls, however, like most birds, are more fowls than bony, and so can't fly off with prey that weighs more than they do.

Young great horneds are often feeding at the nest by late February and frequently leave the nest flightless. At that state they're known as "branchers," making their way from tree to tree by hopping and flapping.

I once monitored a great horned owl nest for the entire nesting season in coastal New Jersey. During the six to eight-week incubation and fledging period I was surprised to find (among various foods) very freshly-caught flounder at the base of the nestling tree.

The barred owl, slightly smaller than the great horned, seems to prefer stream bottoms and riparian woodlands, and perhaps it is more wary of suburban than the upland-loving great horned's ear tufts.

Nevertheless, its hearing is acute, as is its night vision, and it too is a very active, aggressive predator. I recently heard of one that killed a flamingo.

Barred owls tend to nest later in the season than the great horned. They're more likely to take up residence in a hollow tree, or, not locating a suitable tree, a nest box. The great horneds in-

Six-year plan routinely approved

LET'S TALK

By Rob Jones, president, Virginia Beach Education Association

While the headlines were filled with hog lagoons and council quips for school board member resignations, a 255-page document (the Six Year Plan) was routinely approved by school board members on Jan. 20.

VBEA members like to keep an eye on what the administration and school board are up to. It was my job to find out. Here are some highlights of what is planned for the next six years.

The Deputy Superintendent reports that projected enrollment will increase significantly during the next five years for elementary schools while junior high enrollment will remain constant through 1988 and then begin to increase. Senior high enrollment will be stable until 1992 and then take off.

The projected enrollment for 1991 is 78,397. In comparison, the enrollment this year is 62,504. It is clear that Deputy Superintendent E. Bruce McGuire will be busy opening new schools for the next six years.

Instructional Services staff listed the same nine objectives for the next six years. They will be working on positive relationships between area teams and school staffs and they will be enhancing the leadership role of the principals. Area teams plan to help with new teacher orientations and citywide teacher in-services. The teachers of teachers will be helping get ready for new instructional programs. They intend to keep up with the state mandated Standards of Learning and Remedial Education programs. They will spend a good deal of time coordinating things.

The gifted program will grow. In two years, Virginia Beach should have theatre and music programs for grades 4-6 and visual arts and dance programs for grades 7 and 8. These four arts programs will be introduced for gifted children in grades 9-12 a year or two later.

The Office of Student Activities will be active. Initiating an evaluation procedure for all supplementary salary personnel in 1988 should perk up the ears of many coaches. In 1990, minimal certification standards for all athletic coaches will arrive.

Personnel Services wants to look at employee assistance programs and ways to increase employee attendance. In a couple of years, they want to start a rewards and recognition program for all employees. Over the six year period, this group wants to build on an excellent wellness program and conduct a fringe benefit study.

The Office of Planning, Assessment and Resource Development will be busy planning, assessing and developing. It takes 40 pages to get through their plans, but you know how thorough those research folks can be.

Developing the best curriculum possible and a superior staff to deliver that curriculum is the six year challenge of Curriculum and Staff Development. Next year, they hope to start a city-wide Young Authors' Club. Media and Technology wizards plan to computerize library systems and set up "downloading" from Channel 28 to the various schools. They also see the need for a planetarium to be incorporated into the next new high school.

This report noted that planning for the last three years of the six year plan was difficult due to rapid improvements and changes in technology.

Budget and Accounting had a two-page report. Paper costs money you know. The budget office wants to self-insure wherever possible, and the accounting office wants to automate as much as possible.

Safety is the watchword of school plant personnel as they increase their efforts on preventive maintenance. They also want to continue energy conservation. Supply personnel will be looking at the cost effectiveness of the maintenance agreements for school equipment. They will evaluate textbook rentals and try to start construction on 13 new elementary schools. One objective missing from this report is to take the blame for everything that goes wrong.

There are more school cafeterias than McDonald's in Virginia Beach. The food service folks will be serving up training programs to increase productivity as well as providing wholesome meals at affordable prices. Food services will use community involvement in the years to come to help keep the school lunch program palatable.

Pupil Personnel Services wants to establish an on-line data base system for all students in all schools by 1990-91 and transportation planners are getting ready to replace 345 buses and add 70 new ones in their six year plan. They will continue to emphasize safety.

It is impossible to summarize the priority objectives of a dynamic school system in one column, but I hope I have picked out some of the things that are planned that indicate the direction of the school system in the next six years. Please do not hesitate to call the schools if you have questions or concerns about what is planned for the future.

We teach the children.
The Virginia Beach Education Association

School Nurse Day

School Nurse Day is promoted locally by the Virginia Beach Education Association so that school nurses are officially recognized for the many services and kindnesses they provide students. Each school honored its own nurse in some special way on Jan. 28. VBEA also held a reception for nurses that afternoon.

"Many of us have stereotyped the nurse as the one who puts on the bandage or ice pack when a kid gets hurt, but the school nurse does so very much more than handle emergencies," said Jamie Chapman, VCBEA UniServe Director.

The health screening programs, including height, weight, dental, skin, posture, vision, hearing, blood pressure, and scoliosis are very important services to students and their parents. The school nurse expertise helps students stay healthy and learn more in school.

Mayor recognizes efforts to aid the handicapped

The Virginia Beach Mayor's Committee on Handicapped has recognized an individual and an organization for their contributions to local handicapped citizens.

This is the eighth year the committee has requested nominations from the public and awarded outstanding accomplishment in improving the lifestyle of the handicapped.

Julie Hall is recognized for her initiative and hard work in providing employment opportunities for disabled citizens. As an employee of Kentucky Fried Chicken, Hall facilitated the hiring of around 10 handicapped workers in Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurants in the Tidewater area.

Due to her efforts and success of the program, the company's management has set a goal of employing a handicapped worker in each Kentucky Fried Chicken store in Tidewater, and the possibility of making this a nationwide program is being explored.

A box in your yard won't, of course, guarantee a nesting owl, but you can try. Meanwhile, you can listen for barred owls on cold winter nights.

His hoot, often paraphrased as "Who cooks for you?" is similar to the fairly regular call of a great horned ("hoot") owl.

But it also has a large variety of other vocalizations—including what might be described as maniacal laughter—enough to set your own internal time clock back a month or two.

Proofing error

A story in last week's issue about Virginia Beach's Director of Occupational Health said that the doctor was responsible for the city's "4,444 full-time and 490 part-time employees." It should have read "employees." We apologize for the proofreading error.

Fire Safety
By Martin Grube
Master Firefighter

Patches of the Virginia Beach Fire Department

patches across the nation have this much color and detail. The new patch was a lot smaller, too.

At fire department conventions or trade shows, I always have a chance to swap our patch with other firefighters and receive comments on how nice Virginia Beach's fire department patch looks.

These patches are worn on dress uniforms and jackets. The patch can also be found silk-screened into firefighters' work uniforms, which is a blue t-shirt and worn during routine cleaning of the station and equipment.

New patch

Please come by a fire station in Virginia Beach and ask to look at the fire department patch. Also ask for a free pamphlet on fire safety.

Beach resident named chairman of 34th Azalea Festival

Virginia Beach resident James Beaubour Rixey is the Chairman of this year's 34th International Azalea Festival, Norfolk's salute to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), which will take place April 21-26.

Rixey, his wife, Louise, and children Louise and James, attend Galilee Episcopal Church in Virginia Beach.

Rixey has served on the Azalea Festival Committee since 1980. He is a graduate of Norfolk Academy and the University of Virginia. He received his law degree from George Mason University Law School in Fairfax, Virginia.

Rixey practices law at Rixey & Rixey, Attorneys at Law in Virginia Beach. He is a member of the Norfolk/Portsmouth Bar Association, the Virginia State Bar, American Bar Association, and Virginia Trial Lawyers Association.

Since 1983 he has served on the Board of Directors for Day Care and Child Development Centers, Inc. and Board of Directors of Norfolk Academy Alumni Association since 1980.

Traveling artist to present workshop

Virginia Museum traveling artist Fayinda Kodis will present a workshop on mural making on Saturday, Feb. 14, at the Virginia Beach Arts Center, located at 1711 Arctic Avenue, three blocks from the oceanfront. The museum workshop is free of charge.

The workshop, held from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the Arts Center's studio, is organized and funded by the Virginia Museum's Department of Education and Outreach.

Working under the guidance of Kodis, students will create a 6-by-18-foot mural, a large and complex artwork. The workshop is geared towards young people from middle school to high school ages.

Participants will draw their inspiration from book and magazine illustrations as well as from examples of Kodis' past mural projects.

Registration is free and open to the public; spaces, however, are limited. Kodis has directed 24 mural projects in Oregon, Virginia, West Virginia and Washington, D.C., since 1981, often with the assistance of students with special needs and talents.

Maintaining a studio in Washington, D.C., Kodis has participated in the Artist-in-Education program funded by the Virginia Commission for the Arts.

For information, or to register, call the Virginia Beach Arts Center at 425-0000.

Virginia Beach Navy man has important job in Mediterranean

By Bob Hansen
Special To The Sun

"We fix them and they fly them," says James Tigner of Virginia Beach.

Tigner is a Navy aviation electrician's mate assigned to the busy U.S. Naval Air Station at Sigonella, Sicily. He is the son of Patricia Riquelme of Virginia Beach.

Sigonella was once noted for its quiet isolation. Recently, heightened tensions in the Middle East has underlined the importance of this outpost for our national defense.

Air operations are the prime force behind NAS Sigonella's existence. The station's Aviation Intermediate Maintenance Department (AIMD) provides a wide spectrum of repair services for various aircraft. Tigner, 32, is a key member of the team that keeps AIMD and the aircraft it supports at peak operational readiness.

"I am the electric shop supervisor," he says. "We are the largest shop with the most people, and the most equipment in the ship. There are 28 people in the AIMD who work three shifts seven days a week. The amount of gear we work on is awesome—twice as much as any other shop."

The Mediterranean is very busy with ships of all nations plying the waters and without properly functioning aircraft, the United States would face a severe handicap in evaluating the on-going activity in the area.

Nestled in the midst of Sicilian farm country not far from North Africa, Sigonella plays a crucial role in supporting American naval operations in the Mediterranean.

Three squadrons are based here, Fleet Logistics Support Squadron Twenty-Four (VR-24), Helicopter Combat Support Squadron Four (HC-4), as well as Patrol Squadron Twenty-Four (VP-24) deployed here from Jacksonville, Fla.

Petty Officer Tigner works with gear from VP-24 as well as squadrons deployed on ships and stations from Bahrain in the east to Rota, Spain in the west. He also works on equipment from Italian Air Force planes.

Nothing gives Tigner more satisfaction than a job well done—especially where his people are concerned.

"I oversee the training and assignment of all personnel within the division and am the career counselor. It gives me satisfaction to work with and train them to do their jobs," Tigner says. "I take advice from my people and don't spout off because I'm in charge. My people can get the job done—they're not afraid of work."

The work can be rewarding but difficult at times.

"My work center has the largest range of test equipment and systems to keep track of," he says. "Everything is always being upgraded or changed."

"As a supervisor, my job is important to the mission of the command. A large shop requires a focal point and not so much direct supervision but good

Crime Solvers seek rapist

Virginia Beach Crime Solvers is offering a cash reward for information leading to the arrest of a man wanted for the sexual assault of an 18-year-old woman.

On Friday, Nov. 28 at 7:15 p.m., the woman was walking home from Lynnhaven Mall on South Lynnhaven Drive. As she neared Lee Highlands Drive, a man yelled at her stating he had a gun and for her to turn around and walk toward him.

When she did not respond to his demands, she was attacked from behind, knocked to the ground, and dragged into a ditch where she was sexually assaulted.

The man who committed this crime is black, in his twenties, 5 feet 10 inches to 6 feet tall, with a thin build.

long sleeve sweat shirt, and a beige canvas hat.

Anyone with information about this assault, robberies, drug, or any other crime, should call Crime Solvers at 427-0000.

"They were stolen once and I had them replaced," said William. "They came back it seems and took the ones I just had put in."

The estimates for replacing all the piping and pumps is over $1,200.

"If it wasn't for the break-in and damage we would already be in operation."—George Williams, board member of Ecumenical Housing, Inc. as he surveyed the nearly $2,000 damage done by vandals to their Samaritan House II, a home for homeless families.

Ecumenical Housing recently received an award from the United Nations and the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development for their program. In recognizing 1986 as the International Year of Sheltering the Homeless, Ecumenical Housing's program was seen as a unique model.

"Our program is the only one in the state that operates without any state or federal funding," said Haynie. "All of our support comes from a private funding and the work is all volunteerized."

Once the repairs are done, Ecumenical Housing is planning to open Samaritan House II on Feb. 1.

Virginia Beach Civitan Club raises $1,470 for 1987 ISSO

The Virginia Beach Civitan Club has raised more than $1,470 toward the attainment of Civitan International's $1,600,000 goal in raising funds for the International Summer Special Olympics.

Civitan, a worldwide service organization, is the premier sponsor of the 1987 International Summer Special Olympic Games which will be held on the campuses of the University of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College in South Bend, Indiana, in August.

The Virginia Beach club has achieved gold medal status from Civitan for its members' fund raising endeavors for the ISSO Games.

Civitan International is comprised of over 1100 clubs located in the United States, Canada, Norway, Sweden, Germany, Japan, Korea, and Taiwan. Civitan membership has been open to both men and women since 1974. Civitan clubs seek to serve the community, providing services which are not being adequately addressed by government or other organizations.

Black Heritage Celebration to feature displays, music

The city of Virginia Beach and Pembroke Mall will sponsor the Annual Black Heritage Celebration at Pembroke Mall on Friday, Feb. 6, and 7. The celebration will include exhibits of black fraternities, sororities, organizations and businesses which will have displays on black history.

On Saturday, Feb. 7, local entertainment will be provided from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. by the Tidewater Musician's Association (sponsored by Geraldine Harding), local bands, local choirs and other entertainers.

Also, the oldest citizens of 12 black communities will be honored.

In addition to the exhibits and entertainment, students from the Virginia Beach schools will be demonstrating their art talent from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 7.

The celebration is being coordinated by the Coalition of Minority Civic Leagues. For further information, contact Malissa Lee of the Department of Housing and Community Development at 463-9511.

"Reflections" Artmobile to explain connection between art and science

"Reflections," a Virginia Museum Artmobile exhibition which explores interconnections between the natural sciences and the visual arts, opens Feb. 23 for a 4-day stay at the Virginia Beach Arts Center.

The Artmobile will be parked at the Arctic Avenue gallery and will open from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. for public and private school group viewings.

While art and science might seem very separate today, there actually has always been a close relationship between the two, said exhibition coordinator Don Schrader of the Virginia Museum staff.

Artists were among the earliest investigators of nature as they sought more accurate ways to portray the world, he said.

Early scientific studies also provided technologies which rapidly advanced the practice of art.

"The artist and the scientist both deal with the same world, although with different purposes," said Schrader. "The scientist wants to find out how things work, and the artist wants to understand appearances and the effects they produce."

"Yes, both the artist and the scientist must carefully observe the world in order to make selection from its many components and to learn how each of these selections affects their scientific or artistic purpose," he continued.

This Artmobile, the first created in collaboration with the Science Museum of Virginia, uses the theme of reflections to examine areas in which science and art are related.

More than just a gallery for viewing, "Reflections" features hands-on learning materials and demonstration models through which some of the properties of reflected light may be investigated. These devices are accompanied by art in which these properties may be seen at work.

For instance, in the 15th century, Italian architect Filippo Brunelleschi used a mirror to demonstrate perspective, the technique by which the effect of objects, in drawing and in painting, appear smaller as they recede in space.

A replica of the device created by Brunelleschi to demonstrate how perspective rendering corresponded with reality is included in the exhibit, along with two paintings, one in which perspective drawing techniques are ignored and one in which perspective is carefully rendered.

The city had countered that Moore did not meet the requirements of the rezoning of the property because it had not dedicated two acceptable school building sites in the subdivision.

The company had dedicated a 43-acre site and a 25-acre site. The School Board later said the 25-acre lot was not suitable for building because part of it was on a lagoon of the former Malbon hog farm.

The city and Moore reached an agreement last week after a number of executive sessions by City Council, including one on special meetings on the Martin Luther King holiday. The settlement cancelled the need for a trial which was scheduled to start in Circuit Court on Jan. 21.

Of the settlement, Jones said that it was in the best interest of the city. "I don't know that we embrace the agreement with enthusiasm; I don't know that Mr. Moore embraces the agreement with enthusiasm," he said that it was a resolution of what was a difficult situation Council found itself in.

Under the terms:

- The city will accept the dedication by R. G. Moore Building Corporation of the two sites for public use offered when the land use plan for Ocean Lakes was originally approved.

- R. G. Moore pays the city $200,000 in cash within 90 days.
- The city reduces its bonding requirements for infrastructure improvements to the 43-acre school site to $80,000. In addition the city will not require Moore to provide any infrastructure improvements to the 25-acre site. This concession was made because the School Board will not accept the 25-acre site for any purpose.
- Council has agreed to reconsider an application for rezoning originally filed by the Kempsville Lake Partnership No. 1 and Thomas M. Malbon on April 18, 1986 to rezone 2.4 acres from R-4 to PDH-2 and to amend the Ocean Lakes Land Use Plan to add an additional seven single-family units. (Council will consider the application on Feb. 2)
- The Planning Department is directed to record the remaining final subdivision plats to the Ocean Lake Subdivision Phase I, Sections 4, 5, 6, and 7, and Phase 1, Part 2—the plats held back leading to the suit.
- Moore has agreed to dismiss with prejudice the litigation now pending against the city and to release the city from any further liability for all allegations in the suit filed by Moore against the city; the School Board; C. Oral Lambert, director of Public Works; Robert J. Scott, planning director, and Edward Brickell, superintendent of schools.

"National Vocational Education Week," Feb. 8-14, will be celebrated with an open house at the Virginia Beach Vocational-Technical Education Center on Tuesday, Feb. 10, 7 to 9 p.m. Vo-Tech is located one mile west of the Virginia Beach Courthouse complex.

The national theme, "Vocational Education: building America's future," will be illustrated to prospective students, parents and friends who attend the Vo-Tech Open House and observe students working in their shops and classrooms.

If you are interested in computers, automotive technology, advertising design, air conditioning, child care, nursing, cosmetology, food preparation, drafting, electronics, fashion design, printing, residential construction greenhouse management, welding or office management, then you need to see these students in action.

Students can earn three high school credits per year for each course satisfactorily completed at Vo-Tech.

Two Beach natives play basketball for Berea

Virginia Beach natives Bonnie Kluea and Denette Cooke are members of the Berea College women's basketball team.

Bonnie is the daughter of Frank A. Kluea of 624 Aragona Blvd. and Gloria Kluea of 3781 Summer Place Court in Virginia Beach.

Denette is the daughter of Edie and Phyllis Cooke of 3452 Daisy Crescent in Virginia Beach.

Kluea, a 5-6 senior forward, is a quick, aggressive player with strong defensive fundamentals, according to head coach Martha Beagle.

Cooke, a 5-4 senior guard, is a quick, scrappy player who can contribute to the team as she gains more experience, said Coach Beagle.

In the College on-campus labor program, Bonnie is a teaching associate for the physical education department and Denette is a lab assistant in the Chemistry department.

Berea College is located in Berea, Ky.

Kempsville Playhouse presents "Ones At Eight"

Three award-winning one act plays will be presented by the Kempsville Playhouse this weekend. The "Ones At Eight" performances will be at the Kempsville Recreation Center and are presented free to the public by the Performing Arts Unit of Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department.

Performance dates and times are Friday, Jan. 30, and Saturday, Jan. 31, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, Feb. 1, at 3 p.m. All performances are recommended for mature audiences.

"Still Life Pens The Dawn," directed by Shirley Hurd, was written by Tom McClary. The anti-war theme of this play is revealed during a chance encounter between a young, quipped-witted male artist and a haughty lady artist several years his senior. The cast is composed of Sharon Ieralmo, playing the part of Penelope and Kenneth Higgins who portrays David.

"Divine Wisdom" written by Daniel L. Golden, is directed by Douglas Miller. In this play, a young man's life is influenced through the guidance of his strong-willed and deceased aunt and her travelling companion, and equally strong-willed angel. Al Kewing plays the part of Bobo, Kay Sykes plays Doris and Pete Morford has the part of Michael.

The third play is "Shadows," by Scott Memmer. Directed by Ann Hicks, the play depicts the final moments before world destruction as revealed through the emotional reactions of three elderly people. The character of Hortense is played by Suzanne Harrison, Netty is played by Ann Hicks and Jared is played by Russ Sline.

$2.7 million oceanfront land purchase defined

The 24th Street Oceanfront Park Committee has asked City Council to purchase a parcel of oceanfront land for $2.7 million for use as a public park.

The dimensions of the lot are 175 feet deep by 148 feet wide. Sheldon Corner, a member of the committee, said, however, that a 30-foot strip along the oceanfront already has been dedicated to the public, bringing the proposed park depth to 205 feet.

Maurice Jackson, another member of the Committee, said that the 24th Street lot is one of only two vacant spaces (the other is at 34th Street) along the oceanfront.

John Rogers, owner of the land has offered to sell the property to the city for $2.76 million financing up to 100 percent if he is permitted tax free interest. At 7.5 percent interest over a 15-year period, the city's monthly bill would be $25,029.

Rogers would also sell the property for cash in which case he would make a $25,000 donation for improving the park.

The alternative, said Jackson, is another high-rise on the oceanfront.

The committee, said Jackson, was organized to save the property for the city. He said that many of the members have agreed to help pay for the land. Eighty-three members have contributed $5,260 toward the purchase, he said, and more checks are coming in every day.

A park there, he said, might also "spark hotels into replacing sterile concrete and asphalt" with landscaping.

The city has until March 1 to make up its mind.

Andrew Flie, chairman of the Arts and Humanities Committee, said that the committee supported the purchase. He said that beachgoers needed a place to pause and sit down. He said that the park offered a unique opportunity and that Virginia Beach was the only beach city without an open park.

The proposition was referred to the city staff for a recommendation in two weeks.

Beach Convention Bureau seeking to attract new business

According to the Virginia Beach Convention Bureau, three major private sector organizations have joined the city's Economic Development Department in a plan to attract additional group business, particularly in the winter months.

Representatives of the city's Hotel & Motel Association, Restaurant Association, Chamber of Commerce and the Convention Bureau, a division of Economic Development, have published a strategic marketing plan with an immediate goal of 30,000 additional room nights from group business in 1987, a five percent increase.

To accomplish the goal, the plan calls for establishing special events during the target months of October through April. The city's hotels, restaurants, retailers and the Convention Bureau sales staff will market the events to appropriate groups.

The first event selected is the Shamrock Marathon in March 1987 that has been expanded to a three-day Sports Fest geared to corporate teams from throughout the mid-Atlantic region.

The plan also calls for increased communication with citizens regarding the impact of group business on the city's economy and hospitality/courtesy training for all employees who are exposed to visitors.

Chairman of the committee that developed the plan was Professor Louis Pelletier of the Hotel, Restaurant Industry Management program at Tidewater Community College.

leadership. Everyone can contribute. Let the people do what they're good at and it builds up their confidence."

"I signed up with the Army first but they delayed my entry because they didn't have a place for me," says Tigner. "I wanted to go somewhere right away! So, I joined the Navy and was sent to school right after boot camp. I flew in my first airplane and sailed in my first ship in the Navy."

Tigner spent his first few years on active duty "fixing things."

"I didn't know anything about the Navy," he said. "A couple of senior petty officers took me under their wings and showed me the ropes."

Tigner, who had never left the Chicago area prior to graduating from boot camp, has done a lot of traveling since then.

"I've been on five Mediterranean cruises, two North to Atlantic, 12 Caribbeans, the Indian Ocean, and up the Mississippi on a Frigate," he says. "I've had some great liberty."

"In Sigonella, my family and I really enjoy the Italian culture and visiting the local historical sites," says Tigner.

administrator at the Virginia Department of Labor and Industry, said not every business must comply with the federal wage laws.

"Those businesses who have four or less employees are not required to pay minimum wage," he said. But, regardless of the number of workers, he said, if a company's yearly gross income is more than $362,500, they are required to pay the federal minimum wage.

When companies do not fall under the federal regulations, the Virginia state minimum wage regulation of $2.65 comes into effect.

Winter survival, fire safety tips

Many of us use several heat sources to keep our homes warm during the cold winter months.

If using a kerosene heater is one of them, only use the water-clear kerosene—it's the one recommended by manufacturers. Also, keep your kerosene heater in an area that has proper ventilation.

Placing it in an unventilated room can result in your heater burning up all the available oxygen and exploding. This advice from the Virginia Beach Fire Department.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
The Virginia Beach Board of Zoning Appeals will conduct a Public Hearing on Wednesday, February 4, 1987, at 2:00 p.m., in the Council Chambers of the City Hall Building, Municipal Center, Virginia Beach, Virginia. The staff briefing will be held at 1:30 p.m., in the City Council Meeting Office. The following applications will appear on the agenda.

"PLEASE NOTE: If no one appears before the Board to represent the applicant, the variance could be denied!"
REGULAR AGENDA:

Case 1: Harold T. Lemar, Jr. requests a variance to allow parking of major recreational equipment in front of a building instead of behind the nearest portion of a building adjacent to a public street on Lot 5, Block LL, Section 1, Part 6, Oak Springs, 3779 Uphand Road, Princess Anne Borough.

Case 2: L. A. Hendricks requests a variance of 4 feet to a 6 foot side yard setback (east side) instead of 10 feet as required (residential addition and deck) on Lot 6, Block 2, Section 7, Windsor Woods, 3816 Old Forge Road, Kempville Borough.

Case 3: Lots A, Rooney requests a variance of 3 feet to a 2 foot side yard setback (east side) instead of 5 feet as previously approved by the Board of Zoning Appeals on December 4, 1985 (proposed deck) on Lot 7, Section B, Princess Anne Hills, 428 Gosnold Court, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 4: Virginia Smith requests a variance of 5 feet to a 5 foot rear setback instead of 10 feet as required and of 3.9 feet to a 4.1 foot side yard setback (west side) instead of 8 feet as required (accessory building - detached garage) on Lot A, Resubdivision of Ivey Glen, 456 Linkhorn Drive, Virginia Beach Borough.

Case 5: John Vakos by Bruce Gallup, Surveyor, requests a variance of 5 feet to a "0" setback from the east and south property lines instead of 5 feet each as required and to waive the landscaping required in these setbacks (6 story motel) on Lots 8, 9, 10 and part of Lot 7, Block 13, Virginia Beach Development Company, 1300 Atlantic Avenue, Virginia Beach Borough.

Case 6: Bethel Pentecostal Holiness Church requests a variance of 1.98 acres of land area of 1.02 acres of land instead of 3 acres of land as required for a church on a Parcel, Pungo, 1814 Indian River Road, Pungo Borough.

Case 7: Resort Developments request a variance of 10 feet to a 25 foot setback from Shipp's Lane instead of 35 feet as required on Lots 35 and Part of Lot 3, Block 20, Oceana Gardens, Southwest Corner of Virginia Beach Boulevard and Shipp's Lane, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 8: Robert Weisbard requests a variance of 2 feet in fence height to a 6 foot fence instead of a 4 foot fence as allowed in a required side yard adjacent to a street (Birdneck Road) on Lot 19, Birdneck Area, 1101 Bluebird Drive, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 9: Stanley M. Roberts requests a variance of 5 feet to a 5 foot rear yard setback and of 2 feet to an 8 foot side yard setback (east side) instead of 10 feet each as required (swimming pool) on Lot 15, Block O, Section 3, Part 1-F, Great Neck Meadows, 2064 Regatta Circle, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 10: Mr. Bernard A. Hamm, Jr. requests a variance of 5 feet to a 5 foot side yard setback (north side) and of 2 feet to an 8 foot rear yard setback (east side) instead of 10 feet each as required (swimming pool) on Lot 1, Block D, Section 1-A, Wellington Woods, 2252 North Wolfnsare Road, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 11: Andrew A. and Susan A. Ott requests a variance of 25 feet to a 5 foot setback from Indian Lakes Boulevard instead of 30 feet as required (through lot) (accessory buildings - storage shed and detached garage and swimming pool) on Lot 13, Block M, Section 2, Stratford, 1205 Exeter Landing, Kempville Borough.

Case 12: Marriott Corporation requests a variance to allow a perimeter driveway in the required front yard setback (Golden Oak Court) where prohibited (proposed hotel/motel) on Lot A3-A, Section A, Resubdivision of Reader Property, Lynnhaven Area, South Lynnhaven Road, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 13: Time Construction Corporation requests a variance of 6 feet to a 24 foot front yard setback (Apple Tree Crescent) instead of 30 feet as required (new residence) on Lot 39, Cason Farm, Apple Tree Crescent, Princess Anne Borough.

Case 14: Dr. Allan C. Sudin requests a variance of 14 feet to a 4 foot side yard adjacent to a street (Holly Avenue) instead of 18 feet as required (porch and steps) on Lot 229, The Hollies, 401 49th Street, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 15: Lynne W. and Thomas W. Godfrey, Jr. requests a variance of 14 feet to a 4 foot side yard adjacent to a street (Wake Forest Street) instead of 18 feet as required (new duplex) on Lot 2, Plat #1, Cape Story by the Sea, 2652 Ocean Shore Avenue, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 16: U.S. Fiberglass Products, Inc. and Porpoise Enterprises request a variance to allow parking between the street (Cypress Avenue) and the front of the building where prohibited (proposed retail building) on Lots 17 and 18, and Remainder of Lots 19 and 20, Block 37, Virginia Beach Development Company, 19th Street and Cypress Avenue, Virginia Beach Borough.

Case 17: Boyd Homes C/O John E. Shirre requests a variance of 23 feet to a 12 foot setback from Newtown Road instead of 35 feet as required (proposed retail shops) on Parcel E, Newport Shopping Center, Newtown Road, Bayside Borough.

Case 18: Frank's Nursery by Hilltop Copeland Associates requests a variance of 2 feet in fence height to a 6 foot fence instead of a 4 foot fence as allowed in a required setback from a street (Donna Boulevard) on Part of Parcel A-1, Hilltop Square, 1695 Donna Boulevard, Lynnhaven Borough.

Case 19: James M. Valliere requests a variance of 9 feet to a 1 foot side yard setback (west side) instead of 10 feet as required (residential addition) on Lot 59, Pinewood Gardens, 2933 Pinewood Drive, Lynnhaven Borough.

DEFERRED AGENDA:
Case 1: William G. Throckmorton, Jr. requests a variance of 2 feet in fence height to a 6 foot fence instead of a 4 foot fence as allowed in a required setback from a street (Finley Park Drive) on Lot 10, Section 11, Pine Ridge, 2328 Windy Pines Road, Princess Anne Borough.

ALL APPLICANTS MUST APPEAR BEFORE THE BOARD
"PLEASE NOTE: If no one appears before the Board to represent the applicant, the variance could be denied!"
Paul N. Sutton Secretary 307-521-128 VB

VIRGINIA: In the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach on the 8th day of January, 1987
Winifred Langley, Plaintiff, v. Leavy Langley, et al, Defendants.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION
The object of the above-styled suit is to compel partition among the heirs of Robert Langley, who died in March of 1938, seized and possessed of property commonly known land numbered as 4422 Princess Anne Road, Virginia Beach, Virginia and more particularly described as follows:
ALL THAT certain parcel of land containing five (5) acres more or less, situate in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, being a part of the tract of land which was conveyed to Shaw Land and Timber Company by F. M. Whitehurst and wife by their deed dated March 18, 1905 recorded in the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia in Deed Book 75, page 523, and being bounded and described as follows: beginning on the Public Road at the intersection of the Northern line of said road with the Eastern line of said Lot #5 as shown on said plat thereof running along the eastern line of said Lot #5 N. 42° 25' E. Fourteen Hundred and Eleven and Seventy Four Hundredths (411.74) feet more or less to a post; thence Westwardly N. 47° 20' W. One Hundred Sixty Seven and Sixty Four Hundredths (167.64) feet more or less to a post; thence Southerly S. 41° 20' W. Fourteen Hundred Twenty Two and Three Hundredths (142.23) feet more or less to the Public Road; thence Easterly along said Public Road S. 51½° E. One Hundred Forty One and Twenty Four Hundredths (14.24) feet more or less to the point of beginning.

It appearing by Affidavit filed according to law that the addresses of the following defendants are unknown: 1. Thelma McPherson, if living or if he be dead, then the widower and heirs, devisees and successors in title of Thelma McPherson. 2. Leland E. Reed. 3. Other Persons, who are made parties defendants by the general description of parties unknown.

That certain of the defendants in this suit may have been married and if so the names of their respective spouses are unknown and their last known addresses are also unknown. That some of them may have died leaving heirs, devisees, or executors. If so, the names of said heirs, devisees and executors are unknown, and their last known addresses are also unknown. That there are or might be persons other than those named in the Bill of Complaint interested in the real estate to be disposed of in this suit whose names and addresses also unknown.

It is therefore ORDERED that the above named persons, if living, and if dead, their heirs, devisees and executors, and if married, their respective spouses, and all persons other than those herein named, who are or might be interested in the real estate to be disposed of in this suit, whose names are unknown, to appear on or before March 2, 1987

And do what is necessary to protect their interests. It is further ORDERED that the foregoing portion of this Order be published once a week for four (4) successive weeks in the Virginia Beach Sun, a newspaper published in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia.

Chinese "Year of Hare" begins on January 29

On Thursday, January 29, there will be a second chance for a New Year celebration. On that day, the world will leave the "Year of the Tiger" and enter the "Year of the Hare" 4663 in the Oriental lunar calendar.

The date of Chinese New Year changes every year, but always falls between January 21 and February 19. It arrives with the second new moon after the winter solstice (the shortest day of the year).

The Year of the Hare follows the Oriental tradition, said to be started by Buddha, of naming the years after animals in 12-year cycles. In order after the hare are the years of the dragon, snake, horse, ram, monkey, rooster, dog, boar, rat, ox and tiger.

Today, the celebration of the New Year is concentrated into a few days. In days gone by, according to La Choy Oriental lore experts, preparations began a month in advance and festivities lasted a full month after New Year's Day.

Weeks before the New Year, villages bustled with housecleaning activity, befitting the New Year as a time of renewal. Men in masks and warrior costumes symbolically chased pestilence out of town. A villager dressed as a sorcerer ran through the streets with an ax in hand driving out the evil spirits. All debts were to be paid before the old year ended.

The last days of the old year find people purchasing the traditional New Year's gifts—flowers, teas and rare fruits. Food is a welcome New Year's gift, and oranges are especially favored. For members of ones own family, ornaments or fabrics, especially silks, are preferred. Children and servants receive small packets of money wrapped in red paper (a symbol of luck).

The old year is finished with visits to relatives and, for women, cooking. All food preparation must be finished on the last day of the year, since using a knife or any sharp instrument on New Year's Day is thought to cut the coming year's luck patterns.

Fireworks and good wishes at midnight hail the new year. Cries of "Gung Hoy Fat Toy" (Happy New Year) ring through the household.

On New Year's Day, and often for the five days following, families remain at home. Shops close, streets are empty, and each family enjoys feasting and unaccustomed leisure. After the days of private celebrations come still more feasts and a time for visiting friends.

Beef Stroganoff

1 lb. lean beef round	2 cups beef broth*
freshly ground black pepper	2 tbsp. tomato paste*
1/2 lb. mushrooms, sliced	1 tsp. dry mustard
1 onion, sliced	1/4 tsp. oregano
3 tbsp. oil	1/4 tsp. dill weed
3 tbsp. flour	2 tbsp. sherry
	1/3 cup low-fat yogurt

Remove all visible fat from the meat and cut into thin strips, about 2 inches long. Sprinkle with pepper and let stand in a cool place for 2 hours.

In a heavy skillet, sauté mushrooms in oil until tender. Remove from skillet, and sauté onions in the same oil until brown. Remove from skillet.

Brown meat quickly on all sides until rare. Remove and set aside.

Blend the flour into the oil in the skillet and gradually add the broth, stirring constantly until smooth and slightly thick. Add the tomato paste, dry mustard, oregano, dill weed and sherry. Blend well. Combine the sauce with the meat, mushrooms and onions in the top of a double boiler. Cook for 20 minutes. Beat yogurt (to prevent it from curdling). Blend in the beaten yogurt 5 minutes before serving.

*Use unsalted or low-salt products to reduce sodium content.

Yield: 6 servings
